Town Council backs National Grid workers with moratorium

By Sue Ellen Woodcock

The Winthrop Town Council voted for a resolution implementing a moratorium on new gas main permits in town.

In doing so Winthrop joined many other communities in the moratorium including Revere, Cambridge, Everett, Malden and Melrose. The moratorium does allow for emergency permits.

Tuesday night Rocco Leo, a locked out National Grid employee from Everett joined fellow locked-out worker and Winthrop resident Joe Garcia, and other National Grid gas employees in asking the council for its support.

"Our fear is that there is no oversight because of the lockout. We're here for public safety," Leo said. "If a project needs to be completed we are saying to go ahead. This only pertains to new permits."

GETTING CREATIVE WITH LIMEBIKE

Kids at the Winthrop Public Library have been decorating a LimeBike for the past few weeks. It was moved outside the other day, to be enjoyed as is, however, people are also invited to continue to add to it. LimeBike lent the bike that was yarn bombed. Now people are invited to yarn bomb the railing as well. The library has some yarn or you may bring your own. The library is doing this because it's a project that anyone can do, there's no way to do it wrong, it promotes the library, encourages the use of bikes, and it makes people happy to do it and to look at it.

Faison takes reins as town manager

By Sue Ellen Woodcock

Austin Faison, the new town manager got right down to business on his first day on Monday morning. He started the morning off with a department heads meeting and delved into his first Town Council meeting Tuesday night, including an executive session meeting to get up to date on some pending legal matters facing the town.

Faison, 34, recently inked a three-year contract for $140,000 for the town manager position. Part-time Town Manager David Cressman, who has filled in during the past months, has a contract extension to November, but he hinted he may be leaving a few weeks early.

For the past nine years James McKenna was the town manager of Winthrop with a $150,000 annual salary. McKenna opted to take the last year of his 10-year contract as a consultant to the town. His contract expired May 15. After McKenna left Police Chief Terence Delehanty filled in as town manager. He was offered the position, but turned it down.

Originally from Durham, N.H., Faison brings years of experience from the City of Boston. He was recently the assistant town manager for the town of Brookline and has spent three years working for the City of Somerville as the deputy director of the Traffic and Parking Department. He was employed as a senior analyst for the Somerville mayor and holds a master's of public administration from Northeastern University and a bach-

While the area that connects Ocean View Avenue to the school, has always been accessed in the past, it will now be an ADA compliant asphalt footpath extending from a new pedestrian ramp that is being installed by DPW.

The path, which runs alongside the tennis courts, leads to an existing pedestrian ramp at the main entrance of the school, safely guiding the students out and close to the front doors. The ramp will be accompanied by a wooden guardrail that will be installed on the parking lot side of the path to delineate the area and offer protection for students.

"We are happy to be working on this project with Police Chief Terence Delehanty's collaboration in an effort to increase the safety and accessibility for the children and faculty that utilize this parking lot and those that pass through this area on their way to school," said DPW Director, Steve Calla. "We felt it necessary to construct this footpath before the start of another school year to reduce the risk associated with this area."

State Primary two weeks off – what you should know

By Sue Ellen Woodcock

Voters will go to the poles Sept. 4 and Town Clerk Carla Vitale wanted to share information about everything from absentee ballots to parking.

The polling places are:
Precinct 1 – Winthrop Middle/High School, 400 Main St.
Precinct 2 – Arthur T. Cummings School at 40 Hermon St.
Precinct 3 – Winthrop Middle/High School, 400 Main St.
Precinct 4 – O'Connell Hall on Golden Drive

Precinct 5 – Arthur T. Cummings School at 40 Hermon St.
Precinct 6 – Winthrop Middle/High School, 400 Main St.

The State Primary Election will be held the day after Labor Day, Tuesday, Sept. 4. Polls will open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m.

Pay attention to posted signs regarding parking around the Winthrop Middle/High School and around the Arthur T. Cummings School.

elior of arts in political science degree from Bates College.

Faison's experience as the assistant town manager of Brookline includes collaboration with the school department and budget management. He played a major role in a Government Finance Officers Association (GFOA) award for a winning financial plan balancing over $270 million in revenue and expenses in Brookline.

"It's been an eye-opening experience to be in the role. I've been making my career to get to this point," Faison said after Tuesday's council meeting. "Winthrop has a history that I'm familiar with, but I think we are primed to move in the right direction."

He believes that those who were in the role before him "set the table" and he is going toward the low hanging fruit in the next few months.

A resident of West Roxbury, Faison and his wife Nneke, who is employed by WCVB on "Chronicle," have two young children.

The lockout of 1,200 employees in USW Local 12003 and 12012 back in June when their contract expired. Since then National Grid has been bringing in outside help. The last lockout was in 1993, Leo said.

There were concerns expressed about the safety needed when working with gas. School Committee chair Tino Capobianco said he was concerned about the public safety issue.

"Students will be walking to school soon, a number will be biking to school and the fact that some of these underqualified and undertrained workers may be working on a potential gas leak is extremely concerning to me," Capobianco said. "We need to stand together and stand with our neighbors."

The moratorium was placed in committee two weeks ago. The council was asked to take it out of committee and vote on it. Precinct 3 Councilor Peter Christopher said they were seeking more information, especially on the impact on Winthrop. Councilor Phil Boncore asked about people who may be working on their homes. But he was told this is for new permits. Currently, there are three new homes under construction in town.

DPW head Steve Calla also expressed concern about the situation noting that he has to be licensed for water and sewer work.

"This is gas," he said. He added that a new service to a property doesn't require a new gas main.

OUR Opinions

SUMMER: HERE TODAY, GONE TOMORROW

For those of us who live for the triple-H weather of summer -- hazy, hot, and humid -- the six-week period we enjoyed from July 4th week through this past Saturday was our proverbial cup of tea.

Temperatures in the high 80s to low 90s are what summer is all about, especially if we are fortunate enough to be able to enjoy our area's beaches and water-related activities, such as swimming, surfing, rowing, sailing, and fishing.

What can be better than spending time with our loved ones and friends either at or on the cool ocean (or lake) beneath a blistering sun with a warm, off-shore breeze from the hot city?

For us, these past few weeks have been the sorts of days that literally have burned images into our memory that we have remembered for the rest of our lives.

So it was quite a shock -- and quite disconcerting -- when we stepped out of our house early Sunday morning to a total change in the weather. The low-60s temperature, with a stiff breeze and no humidity, was like receiving a slap in the face.

Summer had disappeared overnight.

And while we can expect an occasional non-summery day even among the best stretch of summer weather, the forecast through Labor Day is for more of the same, with temperatures barely breaking 80 for the remaining two weeks of our summer season, which now is just a memory.

The sudden departure of our glorious summer once again has reminded us how short life is -- and that all of us are subject to the maxim of the ancient Roman poet Virgil, Tempus fugit: Time flies.

BIKE SAFETY DRAWS A CROWD

Last Saturday, more than 30 people came out to take part in the bike safety demonstrations taught by instructors in the industry. Free helmets and lights were offered and guests had an opportunity to view a bike photography exhibit inside the E.B. Newton Cultural Center. The event was a collaborative effort of MassBike, Common Wheels, Bike Winthrop, and the Winthrop Police Department.

Kay Moriarty O'Dwyer accompanies her son, Ronan, as he gets a free helmet and light from the Winthrop Police Department.

LETTERS to the Editor

SUPPORTING ROLLINS FOR SUFFOLK COUNTY DA

Dear Editor,
Rachael Rollins, Democratic candidate for Suffolk County district attorney in the Sept. 4, primary, met with over 40 local residents at a special gathering hosted by the Whiting and Kelsey families. Attendees asked questions and listened as candidate Rollins shared her background, qualifications and plans as the new district attorney. She outlined a unique perspective; the only candidate with extensive professional managerial experience having worked as both a defense attorney and prosecutor. She expressed a deep commitment to public safety and a full appreciation of the need for criminal justice reform. Rollins outlined her vision for the office of district attorney as it relates to "the criminalization of poverty"; the bail process, the opioid epidemic, guns and gun availability and working with non-violent offenders.

She shared her personal background and impressive qualifications, professional accomplishments and family struggles with drug addiction and the criminal justice system. With a background in managing large organizations Attorney Rollins will represent the face of the community in a unique way and bring a vision for inclusion, criminal justice reforms and expertise. For more information please contact the Rollins4DA campaign at <http://www.rollins4da.com> or 617-792-6152. Your vote on Sept. 4 will bring a needed voice to the office of the district attorney.

HELLO YOU, ME & THEM BOOK CLUB AND NEW MEMBERS

Dear Editor,
Thank you to all who participated in the Winthrop Library/One Winthrop You, Me & Them Book Club. If you haven't participated previously, we are always open to new members. Please note that the next meeting is:

Date: Wednesday, Sept. 26, 6:30 - 7:45 p.m. @ the Winthrop Public Library.

Book Selection: "The Boston Girl," by Anita Diamant.

We didn't meet in the summer so we'd enjoy new members and new perspectives. We're celebrating the Jewish New Year and selected a book about a Russian Jewish immigrant arriving in the U.S. in the early 1900s. Hope you'll join us and enjoy our selection. Copies are available on reserve at the Winthrop Public Library Book Club.

GALVIN FOR SECRETARY OF STATE

As the Sept. 4 primary approaches, there is a very important statewide race that has been very high profile and has featured many campaign ads: the race for secretary of state. I have personally known Secretary Galvin since I was 6 years old. I have witnessed firsthand his passion and dedication for public service.

This is not a race that should be taken lightly. As secretary of state, he oversees our entire election system. Given the current threat of election hacking and voter suppression by unknown entities, Secretary Galvin has managed to keep our elections secure by refusing to switch our voting system to electronic voting, and by refusing to turn over voter information to President Trump, ensuring the integrity of our election process. Additionally, he banned punch cards long before "hanging chad" in Florida. He kept Massachusetts on a paper ballot system and kept our election system offline and in the hands of the voters.

This past summer, Secretary Galvin filed his automatic voter registration bill, which is now the law of the Commonwealth. Galvin has worked to expand voter registration through mail-in, online, and pre-registration for 16-year olds. This is an important step because those of that age are looking to head off to college and it creates the foundation for a robust and inclusive voter population at an early age. He is also a supporter of same-day registration and expanding early voting to include primaries and municipal elections.

Secretary Galvin created the Address Confidentiality Program which gives victims of domestic abuse and stalking an extra layer of protection; knowing that they could get driver's license, register to vote, and do all the things that require an address without risking exposure to their abuser.

According to a March 28, 2018, New York Times article, President Trump and his administration is laying the groundwork to sabotage the 2020 census so that fewer people in the Commonwealth are accounted for. If he succeeds, the citizens of the Commonwealth are likely to lose a seat in Congress along with federal funding for transportation, education, and healthcare. Secretary Galvin was the first to call attention to this issue, and now Massachusetts has joined other states in a federal lawsuit to stop the Trump administration from sabotaging the 2020 census.

Bill Galvin is a kind, honest, dedicated, experienced, and most importantly a PROGRESSIVE leader. No one is more qualified to serve as secretary of state. Please join me in voting for William Francis Galvin on Sept. 4, 2018 in the Democratic Primary for secretary of state.

ARTICLE 840 - WINTHROP'S INDIAN MEMORIES

Before Europeans arrived on Massachusetts shores in the early 1600s, first as fishermen, trappers, explorers and finally in 1620 as colonists, this area was inhabited by Indians (Native Americans) who existed primarily as hunters. In 1600, it was estimated that there were over 200,000 Indians living in the greater Boston area (inside of what is now Route 495) who were part of the loosely organized confederation called the Algonquian Nation and that they had a fighting force of 30,000 warriors. Captain John Smith visited New England in 1614/5 and wrote – “The country is the paradise of these parts, the sea coast as you pass shows all along large corn fields and great troops of well proportioned people. We found the people in these parts friendly but in their fury no less valiant”. Other ships from Spain and France visited the area during the next four years and introduced European diseases such as Small Pox to a population that had not developed any immunity to them. The local tribes were decimated and reduced to a few thousand members. Subsequent attacks by the Tarrantine Tribes from Maine, their traditional enemies, further diminished the local tribes to a total of less than 300 warriors capable of fighting. This is why the Pilgrims in 1620 and the Puritans in 1630 met with no resistance when they landed and established their villages. As to Winthrop, our peninsula had two or three small encampments where Indians, in the spring after they planted crops for the next year, came to fish, collect clams/lobsters and enjoy the beaches during the summers. In the fall they would return to their inland communities such as in Medford, Malden etc where they would harvest their crops previously planted in the spring. In 1888, under Channing Howard our then town engineer, Indian graves were uncovered while grading for the construction of the railroad station at French Square. Harry Whorf, then a boy, helped to photograph the contents of these graves. These items were turned over to the Peabody Museum at Harvard University where it was determined that the graves were over 300 years old. These items may be seen there today. Later, another skeleton was found when the E.B. Newton School was built on Pauline Street and evidence of an Indian encampment was discovered when historical surveys were conducted prior to the recent building of the new Arthur Cummings Elementary School. Shown here, in the first three pictures, are photos taken in 1888 when the first graves were opened. They depict skeletons lying in a shallow grave about 3 feet deep, a human skull and various pieces of bone, teeth, shells and beads also located in the grave. In April 1924, a 40-page brochure was issued by Harvard University through the Peabody Museum of American Archaeology and Ethnology - Volume XI, No 1 by Charles C Willoughby that documented and illustrated the skeletal remains and artifacts discovered in the 10 graves uncovered in Winthrop. This writer was honored to receive a copy as a gift from my daughter, Sandy Bradley, for a recent birthday. Pictures can bring back many interesting historical moments in a community's past, some based on fact and others related to rumors. The fourth photograph is of the plaque describing the history of a rock where Indians were reported to have ground their corn for bread, which was served with fish caught along our shores, reminding us of times before the English arrived in 1624. As noted on the plaque, the rock was moved initially (in 1854) to the corner of Pleasant and Pauline Streets where it resided until the early 1900's when it was again moved to the corner of Pleasant and Main streets. It sat there until about 1946 to 1950 when the public housing construction began on the site. The rock was again subjected to yet another move but this time it split in two and the whereabouts of its remains are unknown. As those of us that walk around Deer Island have seen, there is an area on the harbor side that has been dedicated as the location for a future memorial to the Indians who died there while being held in a concentration camp during King Phillips War in 1675.

4 Many of our old residents will remember the rock which has been known as the “Indian Rock” situated on Mr. Geo. Turnbull's estate on Pleasant street, and will remember with pleasure the many happy hours spent in pounding the juice out of apples in the large hole in which it is supposed the Indians ground their corn. Within the last few days this rock has been removed to the lawn of Mr. J. P. Turnbull on the corner of Pauline and Pleasant streets, who will preserve this relic of “ye ancient days.” The removal was a very difficult one, the stone weighing many tons, and took the united efforts of six horses and about the same number of men to get it in its new position.

The repairs to the boulevard along Shore Drive, which has been closed for five months since the storm last winter, from Charles Street to Tewksbury Street, are nearly completed. A delay of several days was caused by the shortage of the two-ton capstones that will repose on top of the newly-installed seawall, which will hold the heavy iron fence that will be connected to the present fencing at either end of the boulevard. The use of the boulevard has been sorely missed this summer season, but the strollway along the ocean's shores soon will be passable for promenaders. Work was started on Wednesday on the construction of a 300-foot jetty at the southern end off the boulevard, opposite the circle at the head of Beacon Street. 5 Ways To Help Your Child Succeed in School

Get your children ready to perform like heroes in school with these teacher-recommended tips.

You do a lot to get your kids ready for school—buying school supplies, making lunches, and enforcing bedtimes. But there's more to it than No. 2 pencils and a coordinating outfit. It's just as important that students arrive at school with a positive attitude and enthusiasm for learning.

We asked schoolteachers from across the country how to make sure kids walk into the classroom ready to learn and perform at their best. Here's their top 5 list.

1. Fine-Tune the Morning Routine

Every teacher polled stressed the importance of a well-oiled morning routine, one that starts the minute a child's feet—and yours—hit the floor. "It's when we are rushing and doing things last minute that stress starts to mount, arguments happen, and kids can get upset. This is carried with them into the classroom and the day begins on the wrong foot," says Keith Tomasek, a 5th grade teacher at Whispering Oak Elementary in Winter Garden, Fla.

You can help make mornings less stressful by making sure everyone gets a good night's sleep and by organizing as much as possible ahead of time. Pack lunches the night before and lay out clothes. Have your kids fill their backpacks and line them up by the door. It's amazing how attention to these little details can help the morning go more smoothly.

Finally, don't forget the most important item of all on a winning morning agenda: a good breakfast. Keep healthy cereals and fresh fruit on hand, and stock your refrigerator with proteins that are easy to prepare. "A protein breakfast is huge. I can tell the difference between kiddos who have this and those who do not," says Linda McElreath, a 4th grade teacher at Daffron Elementary in Plano, Texas.

Try whipping up some scrambled eggs with tofu crumbled in. Cook some breakfast sausage or bacon and serve it on the side. An easier route is to simply spread some peanut butter on toast. And if you're really pressed for time, grab some hard-boiled eggs (made ahead of time) and peanut butter granola bars for your kids to munch on in the car.

2. Teach Self-Reliance

Every step of the educational journey should take your child closer to self-sufficiency. As he gets older, he'll need to make more and more decisions on his own, and you want him to be ready. Your child's early school years provide the perfect opportunity to work with his teachers to help him learn to take responsibility for himself. Laura James, a 1st grade teacher at John Adams Elementary in Alexandria, Va., assigns her students tasks to help the classroom run smoothly and suggests that parents do the same at home.

Think of some tasks your child can handle: gathering and emptying wastebaskets from around the house, making his bed, or unloading the silverware from the dishwasher each morning. Taking responsibility for simple tasks like these will pay big benefits down the road.

Tomasek, who teaches 10-year-olds, takes an even firmer stance. "I don't like it when kids use 'My mother forgot to...' or 'My mother didn't...' to start their excuses," he says. "Start to let your kids be responsible for themselves. They have to stop thinking their parents will swoop in to fix their missing assignments and low grades before the report card comes out."

When children take responsibility for their own learning, they will work to earn good grades rather than waiting until they receive bad grades to make studying a priority. Parents should encourage their children to become more independent learners as they get older but recognize that it will take time for them to become truly self-reliant.

3. Set a Good Example

Reading to your child is one of the most important things you can do to help your child be prepared for school, say teachers Linda DeSousa and Cathy Chomistek, who teach 2nd grade at Daffron Elementary. Reading to a child instills a love of reading—the basis for all learning—and opens a child's imagination.

Tomasek is on the same page. "Model the behaviors you want your children to have," he says. "Make sure your children see you reading if you expect them to. Why not read the same book as a family and start an at-home book club?"

DeSousa and Chomistek recommend playing board and card games with your children. Besides being a good way to spend time together, the give-and-take of playing such games teaches children how to take turns; it also helps them learn that they won't always get to go first, and they won't always win. Children must learn to be good sports when winning or losing.

4. Support the Teacher

There may come a point in your child's education where you disagree with his teacher on some issue. That's fine and not unexpected—people are bound to have different perspectives. The important thing to remember is not to talk negatively about the teacher in front of your children.

"If you have an issue with a teacher, talk to the teacher or school administration privately," says Tomasek. You don't want your child to get the message that you think the teacher doesn't know what he is doing. A child may lose respect for a teacher, which can contribute to behavior problems. It can also lower a student's interest in school.

McElreath could not agree more. "A positive attitude about school must be communicated at home," she says. "Keep a dialogue open between yourself and your child's teacher through emails, scheduled meetings, even informal hellos and goodbyes at drop-off or pickup. Students must feel that parents and teachers are a team with them."

5. Don't Dis Homework

In many homes, the very word "homework" is met with a groan. Stop to think about who makes the first complaint about homework. Is it you, the parent, or your student? As a parent, you help shape your child's attitudes about education. That's why it's so important to keep a positive attitude about homework, as with all other things school-related.

Laura James explains the importance of homework to the parents of her 1st graders at the beginning of each school year. "It's a valuable aid in reinforcing what we are learning in class, and it teaches responsibility, as well. It also helps develop positive study habits for the future," she says.

By the time children reach Tomasek's 5th grade classroom, homework is a given. He urges parents to have a homework schedule or plan in place and a designated area to study. He likes parents to concentrate on teaching their kids how to plan out long-term assignments and break the workload into parts so they will be completed on time.

He frowns upon parents who bring assignments to school that students left at home. Rather than rescue their children, Tomasek suggests letting them suffer the consequences. Missing a homework grade in elementary school is not going to keep them out of college. "Only by correcting bad behaviors at a young age will you help them be more responsible for the future," he says.

Keep Kids Learning Successful students have a natural curiosity. Encourage your child's curiosity by helping him learn more about his special interests.

Take your child to the library and explain how to use library services. Help her find books on topics she's especially interested in.

Bookmark educational websites for your kids to explore. Find a few sites with educational games your children can play.

Take your children to local historical sites, art museums, and cultural festivals. Try to connect what you see to what they are learning in school.

Show your own curiosity. Let your child see you trying out a new hobby or reading a book on a topic you're interested in.

Top 5 Ways Parents Can Help Their Children Succeed in School

Make sure your child is at school every day possible. Missed work is generally more of a loss than made-up work is a gain. There is no substitute for attendance.

Designate a time and place for your child to do homework. If he does not have homework, have him use the time to read. Routine is the essence of a child's life.

Keep in touch with teachers, but don't overdo it. Most teachers appreciate parents caring enough to keep in touch a few times a term but do not appreciate parents expecting contact on a regular basis.

Teach your child character—it "will improve social and academic skills more than anything else. Some things are simply wrong, and the world your child will grow up in will punish crimes, so give your child a head start.

Make time every day to talk with your child about the day's activities. Let them know you care, and really listen to what they have to say.

Nicole Zervas Dance Academy celebrates 30 years

Nicole Zervas Dance Academy (NZDA) is celebrating its 30th anniversary, a milestone that owner and director, Nicole Paolo, is proud of. After 30 years, what brings Miss Nicole (as she is affectionately known) the most happiness is building the confidence of her students. Developing their strengths, communication and time management skills are all essential components to her curriculum.

"It feels great! We're always moving forward. Three decades has been a long time," said Nicole, who grew up in Revere. "My team of teachers do an amazing job. I have an incredible office staff. I also work very closely with my performance board, who have been with me since they were babies. It really is a big, collaborative effort."

Paolo hopes to create a comfortable, safe atmosphere at her studio on Broadway in Revere, where children have a peaceful outlet to express themselves. She encourages her students to be ambitious and bold.

"My goal is that we give our dancers the skills to be successful young adults," she explains. "When students leave, we hope to give them a broad range of tools to succeed—not only in dance, but also skills that will carry them through life."

Nicole, who recently celebrated her 21st wedding anniversary with her husband, Domenic, also works full time as an administrator in the public elementary school system. Her work in special education inspired her belief in an all-inclusive environment at NZDA.

On her office wall is a framed chalkboard that reads: "Behind every dancer who believes in themselves, is a teacher who believed in them first." The gift was created by a group of students who recently graduated high school and began dancing with her as toddlers in the studio's "Tiniest Toes" program.

"Being influential in a young person's life is truly one of the greatest joys I have," said Nicole, whose tap shoes and worn ballet slippers line her office floor.

On her desk is a framed dance portrait of her mentor,

Sharon Tirrell, whose concepts have inspired the principles at NZDA. The two met when Nicole first enrolled at Tassinari and Tirrell, a dance studio in Winthrop, when at the age of 10, she realized that music and movement made her feel complete.

"Sharon and her mother were both huge contributors to the foundational work and philosophies at my studio: dancing for a purpose, dancing for a message," Nicole described. "Your biggest competitor is yourself. Make sure you are always your personal best."

Tirrell, who eventually became NZDA's co-director, was instrumental in encouraging Paolo to open her own studio. Tirrell also helped Nicole choreograph the routine for her appearance in a national Diet Pepsi commercial on Boston City Hall Plaza.

When NZDA opened, it was the first dancing school in the area to offer street dancing classes. Today, the studio provides in-depth foundational classes in ballet, tap, and jazz, as well as hip hop, Latin, contemporary, and tumbling.

"We've been steadfast in Nicole Paolo, owner and director of Nicole Zervas Dance Academy, is celebrating the studio's 30th anniversary.

our philosophies," Nicole said. "Being on the forefront of dance is an important key to keep dancers engaged. You need to constantly progress with the times and be aware of what is happening in your industry, but never forget about your foundation."

Register at Nicole Zervas Dance Academy located at 790 Broadway, Revere, on Saturday, Aug. 18 and 25: 9 a.m. – 1 p.m. and Thursday, Aug. 30: 6 – 8 p.m. Classes begin on Wednesday, Sept. 5. For more information, contact Nicole Paolo at (781) 284-3137, or email NZDance@verizon.net.

It's time to update your child's health information

Book bags are replacing beach totes as it quickly becomes time for students to go back to school. Organizing your child's health information, keeping current with doctor's appointments and planning for emergency scenarios should be part of every parent's seasonal routine, the nation's emergency doctors say.

"We all know about reading, writing and arithmetic. Let's consider adding a fourth 'R' for parents – establishing routine healthy behaviors," said Paul Kivela, MD, MBA, FACEP, president of the American College of Emergency Physicians (ACEP). "Now is the perfect time to catch up on doctor visits and update your child's health information. Taking these actions, before an emergency occurs, can help avoid a trip to the ER and possibly save your child's life."

Some back to school action items:

- Organize your child's medical history records and emergency medical contact information.
- Complete a consent-to-treat form. The form authorizes medical treatment and you should give copies to the school nurse and any day care providers. List prescription medications, medical problems, previous surgeries and pertinent family history. Be sure to update your emergency contact information. Free forms can be downloaded at <http://www.emergencycareforyou.org/Be-Prepared/Organize-Your-Important-Medical-Information/>.

- Work with your school nurse and appropriate care providers to develop action plans for health issues such as asthma or food allergies. Has your child been screened for allergies? Are all vaccines and immunizations current?

- Schedule medical and dental check-ups before school starts or as soon as possible. In addition to a routine physical examination, consider vision and hearing tests, since impairment can adversely affect learning. Consider a sports check-up if your child participates in athletics.

- If your child walks to school or to a bus stop, review the route with them. Be sure to point out traffic dangers or other potential hazards. For bus riders, establish a safe and clearly visible pick up/drop off spot, preferably with a group of children.

- If your child drives to school, make sure he or she obeys all laws and wear seatbelts. Don't text and drive!
- Make sure your child knows how to call for help in an emergency. Emergency contact numbers should be visible right next to every telephone in your home. Encourage your child to learn when to call 911 and give their name, address and a brief description of the problem.

Avoiding backpacks that are too heavy can prevent back and shoulder injuries. And, packing healthy lunches will help your child develop eating habits that ward off obesity, which contributes to a host of emergency and chronic conditions later in life. Try to encourage a consistent sleep schedule, especially for teens.

School Resource Officers are protectors, not the enemy

By Jonathan Chang

In 2015 a viral video of South Carolina school resource officer (SRO) Ben Fields' slamming a student across the classroom caused a public outrage. During the same year in Lynn, an SRO arrested a student with special needs.

"While the [school resource officer] was a support person for the student, the district should realize that involving an SRO in non-criminal matters comes with an added risk to the student because the SRO's primary responsibility is law enforcement," the Office of Civil Rights wrote on July 30 regarding the Lynn incident.

All these instances have begged the same question from the public: Will these officers provide protection, or will they threaten student safety?

Viral videos of rare but vicious incidents may cause horrors, but SROs have had plenty of heroics. In May, Illinois SRO Mark Dallas received much praise for chasing and pursuing a gunman out of a high school.

"Because of his heroic actions, countless lives were saved," Dixon Police Chief Steven Howell told the New York Times in May. "We are forever indebted to him for his service and his bravery."

Majority of the SROs' works are not the dramatic highs and lows that the public sees; it's the small details that are often overseen: preparing the students for real situations by doing drills, ensuring that safety systems are ready, or even their even their presence in itself.

Still, with viral stories often being the one that impacts social view of the SROs, the public relationship could use some work. The recently reported Revere Police Youth Academy may benefit this relationship.

"The foundation of the program is making good decisions and developing positive relationships between youth and law enforcement," Capt. Amy O'Hara told the Journal.

As the new school year approaches, safety will remain as one of the top concerns for parents and schools alike. There will be few like the school resource officer who will help get that done.

Homework: Why It Matters

Homework can be a hassle, but it's not just busywork. Here's what you should know about your child's homework and how to take the "ugh!" out of study time.

Let's face it: Homework can be almost as frustrating for parents as it is for kids. Getting kids to do their homework can be a challenge, and when they do sit down to study, a host of other problems can emerge. But your child's study sessions don't have to stress out the whole family.

Doing homework may not be as fun as playing video games or chatting with friends, but it shouldn't be something that kids dread. "Homework should inspire students rather than bore them," says Sharon Marshall Lockett, author of Home Sweet Homework. Your child's assignments should not be busywork, she says, but should help him build a skill, test a skill, or learn something new.

You can help by being a homework monitor, stepping in to answer questions or offer encouragement, but not doing your daughter's assignments for her. Supervising your child's homework gives you a chance to see what she's learning and how well she's grasping the material. It helps you understand her learning style and shows you care about her education.

Many kids resist studying by asking why they have to learn things they'll never use in real life. If your son shows little interest in his assignments, you can make them seem more relevant by pointing out ways you use the math and language arts skills he's studying in daily life.

A common rule of thumb for homework is 10 minutes per grade per night. So a child in 3rd grade should have 30 minutes of homework, and a child in 6th grade should have one hour. Two hours per night is often recommended as the maximum for a high school student. Keep in mind that some students work faster than others. If your child does not understand the material, it may take him longer. If he's especially bright in that subject, he'll finish sooner.

Parents who feel that their kids are overloaded can be vocal, but they're in the minority, says Harris Cooper, a professor of education, psychology, and neuroscience at Duke University and a longtime researcher on homework. He points to a 2007 MetLife survey in which about 15 percent of parents said their kids had too much homework. About 60 percent said the homework load was just right, and 25 percent thought their children had too little homework.

If you think your child takes too long to finish homework, try to determine whether the problem lies in having too much work or managing time poorly. "One of the things homework is supposed to do is to teach time management and self-discipline," Cooper says.

Make Homework More Fun

If your child complains of boredom while doing homework, consider shaking up the routine a little to make study sessions more fun. Lockett suggests these approaches to keep kids engaged.

Get help from friends: If your child is struggling with an assignment, let him call a friend for help or invite a friend over to work on it with him. You might also invite neighborhood kids over and let them do homework together. Have them sit around the dining room table and help each other.

Incorporate physical activity: Set mini goals for homework and allow time for stretching, jumping jacks, or a snack after each goal is completed. For a kid who can't sit still, find active ways to study, such as tossing a football while calling out the multiplication tables or fidgeting with small toys while memorizing facts.

Turn the tables: Let your child teach you a lesson. Let her give you a quiz and a grade.

Divide and conquer: Instead of spending equal time on every topic, encourage your child to hone in on what he doesn't know and skim the content he has already learned.

Talk it through: Encourage your child to study out loud. By tapping his sense of hearing, your child will be more likely to remember the concept without spending additional energy.

8 Cures for Homework Headaches

My child has too much homework.

Help break assignments into manageable chunks. Ask the teacher how long homework should take. If it's taking your child longer, he may not understand the material.

My child claims to never have homework.

Check with the teacher to see whether he is assigning homework. Some do not. If your daughter says she completed her homework at school, review it to make sure it meets your standards. Encourage her to spend her homework time reading a book of her choice.

My child won't do her homework.

Let her know that school is her job and that you expect her to do her homework. Set aside a time and place for her to do it, and review her work. Enforce appropriate consequences if homework doesn't get done.

My child procrastinates.

Check your child's progress on long-term projects daily so he doesn't fall behind. Enforce a set time for homework so he can't put it off until late at night or just before the bus arrives in the morning. Some kids need more homework oversight than others, and a procrastinator often needs especially close monitoring.

My child is disorganized.

Help her find tools to get organized and work with her on a system she can manage. Show her how you stay organized and remind her of the consequences of disorganization, such as losing an assignment.

My child is a perfectionist.

Set limits for time spent on homework. Praise her good work while letting her know you don't expect her to be perfect because perfection is unattainable. Encourage interests in other things such as an activity, socializing, or just chilling out.

My child argues with me over homework.

Set a firm time and place for homework. Spell out clear consequences for not doing it. Then step back and let your child take responsibility for his learning. Review his work upon completion. Let him know you'll loosen the reins when he shows he can do his work without arguing.

I can't help because I don't understand the assignment.

Seek guidance from the textbook and your child, asking your child to walk you through the steps to solve the problem. Math instruction in particular has changed over the years. Resist the urge to teach the problem-solving method you learned, which can create confusion.

Back to school: Beware of the JUUL

By Jonathan Chang

If last year's fidget spinners were all fun and games, this year, the national attraction is rather different: JUUL, an e-cigarette device that has become so synonymous with vaping and accepted by the masses, that the term "juuling" has been coined.

Unlike the past forms of bulky e-cigarettes, JUUL proposes a completely different design: a small, USB-like device that comes in a variety of colors, skins and flavors. Its convenience has won over the e-cigarette industry, now claiming about 70-percent of the market share, according to a study by the Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids.

Juul Labs says that the device is designed to help adult smokers transition out of their cigarette addiction, but if you think that JUUL devices won't reach the hands of the youth, that's a grave mistake.

An estimated 11.7-percent of high school students and 3.3-percent of middle school students were e-cigarette users in 2017, according to the

The JUUL is a new type of electronic cigarette - it's designed to look sleek, and is almost indistinguishable from a standard USB storage device, making them a hot commodity for students.

National Youth Tobacco Survey.

That's more than 2.1 million youth.

The stats are seemingly increasing over time. According to a 2018 study by the Truth Initiative, nearly one-fifth of youth, ranging from 12- to 17-year-old, reported that they had seen the use of JUUL in their schools.

There are several concerns: For one, while JUUL pods contain nicotine. The greater issue, perhaps, is the lack of awareness on the issue. A study from Truth Initiative found that 63-percent of 15-to-24-year-old JUUL users did not know that JUUL always contains nicotine.

Nicotine, according to the Surgeon General's report, "poses dangers to youth, pregnant women, and fetuses. The use of products containing nicotine in any form among youth, including in e-cigarettes, is unsafe."

JUUL has been a particular subject within Massachusetts, where the State Attorney General Maura Healey launched investigations into Juul Labs for failing to prevent minors from purchasing its products.

"We welcome the opportunity to work with the Massachusetts Attorney General because, we too, are committed to preventing underage use of JUUL," said Juul spokesman Matt David in a past statement. "... Furthermore, we have never marketed to any one underage."

Teacher's Tips: How Parents Can Help

Communicating with your child's teacher is one way to help him succeed at school. But just how often should you contact the teacher, and what questions should you ask? And when do a parent's questions or behavior tip from appropriate to meddling?

What differences do you notice in students with involved parents?

Parents who take an active interest in their child's work and school well-being are one of the biggest contributors to my students' success. Children of involved parents typically have higher self-esteem and have fewer behavior problems in school. And students' grades usually improve when their parents become involved.

How can parents stay informed about their child's school performance?

If your school posts grades online, be sure to check them often. Emailing the teacher is also a good way to get a quick status report. Email has been a godsend, because it is less intrusive for the teacher and less threatening for the parent.

What are some questions parents should ask about their children?

Ask the teacher whether she thinks your child is giving his best effort in class and whether she has noticed any significant changes in your child's behavior or grades. It's also a good idea to find out whether the teacher has concerns about the friends your child has chosen. Make sure you understand the teacher's policy for making up missed work, and don't forget to ask about the best way to keep in touch throughout the year.

What should parents do if they feel the teacher assigns an excessive amount of homework?

First, try to find out whether the amount of work really is excessive. Ten minutes per grade level each night is about right. If the level of homework does seem like too much, think about whether it happens often or only once in a while: Some units and projects simply require more homework.

Massport CEO Thomas Glynn announces intention to step down

By John Lynds

After six years as head of Massport, CEO Thomas Glynn announced last week that he would step down from the post in November, a year earlier than his contract.

Glynn said his last days at Massport will be in November even though his contract will expire in 2019.

"This is a great job, but after six years and at the age of 72, I feel it is a good time to pass the baton to the next leader who will have the chance to lead a great team," said Glynn.

Glynn took over the reins at Massport in September 2012 and was picked from a field of over 40 candidates. The Board confirmed him unanimously that year, noting his vast senior leadership experience and his commitment to public service.

According to state leaders Glynn's tenure as executive director and CEO at Massport will be remembered for the growth of international flights at Logan Airport; revitalization of the Working Port of Boston and Worcester Regional Airport; and the Omni Hotel diversity initiative.

"Throughout his tenure leading Massport, Tom Glynn has been a tireless advocate for furthering the Commonwealth's reputation as an international destination," said Gov. Charlie Baker. "Tom's hard work to expand service at Logan and the Commonwealth's other transportation hubs has driven economic activity across Massachusetts, and I thank him for his years of dedication and service."

"Tom Glynn has guided Massport through an historic era of airport expansion, continuing the unfortunate trends of previous Massport CEO's," said East Boston organization AirInc. in a statement, the neighborhood's Massport environmental mitigation watchdog group. "Since 2012, when Mr. Glynn accepted the appointment to lead the Massachusetts Port Authority, airport passenger activity at Boston's landlocked airport has increased 37 percent, according to their own reports. Along with this growth, has come additional beneficial economic activity, which the Port Authority is quick to point out. If Mr. Glynn's success is to be measured by the growth of airport operations, his tenure at the helm of Boston Logan has been a wild success. However, the expansions Mr. Glynn has set in place are unsustainable. At its current rate of 5 percent annual growth, Logan will surpass 90 million passengers by 2035. Nighttime operations, traffic, and noise will more than double. And emissions will increase by 174 percent."

AirInc. hopes the next CEO of Massport will make significant adjustments without pushing expansion further.

"I certainly wish Mr. Glynn the very best, it is uncertain how the towns relationship will change with the new director, however, I will personally work very hard in convincing the new head of MASSPORT to re-open the PILOT agreement to better reflect the airports negative impact on our community," said Winthrop Town Council President Ron Vecchia.

However, some like Massport Board member and Transportation Secretary Stephanie Pollack argued that Glynn made relationships building with the Authority's neighborhood communities a top priority.

"Tom Glynn has done an exceptional job leading Massport, ensuring that Logan Airport is a good neighbor while at the same time growing the number of passengers and domestic and international destinations served," said Pollack.

Massport's CFO John Prankevicus will serve as acting CEO beginning Nov. 17, 2018.

Massport Board member and East Boston resident John Nucci said the Board will begin a search process that may extend beyond Glynn's departure date.

"Tom's departure is a major loss for Massport and for the affected communities," said Nucci. "He knew how to listen to neighbors and put a premium on giving back to those neighborhoods that had to live with Logan's impacts. As a board, we have a major challenge ahead of us finding someone to fill his shoes. As we search for a successor to Tom, I hope the board will be looking for someone with demonstrated public sector experience. The secret to Tom's success was his ability to navigate the halls of government with great skill."

East Boston District Court's Chief of Probation Tassinari retires

By John Lynds

After 34 years working for the Probation Department and the last six as East Boston District Court's Chief of Probation Thomas Tassinari officially retired last week.

Tassinari, who came over to Eastie's courthouse from Chelsea's probation department following the retirement of former Chief of Probation Dave Arinella's in 2012, had a stellar career reforming the lives of criminal offenders and drug addicts.

Tassinari grew up in East Boston, where his father and uncle owned an appliance repair shop, Day Square Radio, but never envisioned at the time the path his life would take.

"I wanted to work in the shop," he said. "But my parents didn't want us to work in the shop they wanted us, as first generation Americans, to get an education and go to college."

So Tassinari graduated high school and enrolled in Northeastern University.

"I wanted to be a fifth grade teacher," he said. "My senior year I was doing my coop student teaching in Malden Public Schools. They had this alternative school for special education students within one of the schools that was growing and they wanted to hire me after graduation in September when school started."

So Tassinari's life was all planned out. He start teaching 5th grade, go back to school to get a master's degree in special ed and he'd be all set.

"So the summer comes and the state cuts the program so I'm out," he said.

Tassinari, with his background working for the Social Centers during college and brief stint at teaching still wanted to do something that would help kids.

"Before there was the Department of Social Services (now the Department of Children and Families) there was the Public Welfare Office of Social Services so I got a job there and worked in Lynn and Lawrence," said Tassinari. "Then they restructured and created DSS."

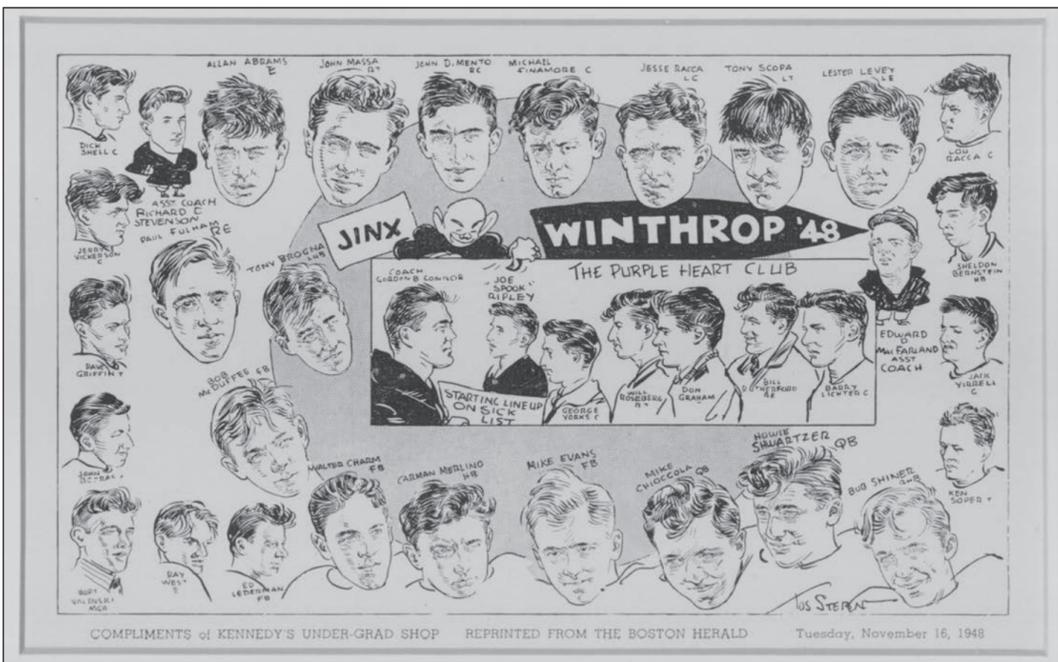

His former boss and friend at the Social Centers, Susan Palmer, was appointed DSS's area director in Eastie and gave Tassinari a job closer to home.

"Our office was in the former Mount Carmel convent," he said. "And that's where I worked out of for five years starting in 1979."

However, the grueling work of dealing with abused kids on a daily basis took its toll.

"I remember going to court one day and I had wrote a care and protection petition so DSS could get this kid out of an abusive home and into out custody," said Tassinari. "The juvenile probation officer at the time took the petimost wins all time by an NFL player (Vinateri is 45 years old).

Brady is tied with Drew Brees for third all time at 488 regular season touchdowns passes and needs 12 to become the third player to reach 500. He would join Manning and Brett Favre (508).

Brady has 66,159 career passing yards and needs 3,841 to become the fourth quarterback in NFL history with 70,000.

Brady has started 251 regular season games at quarterback. If he starts all 16 in 2018 he will move past Manning (265) and be second all-time with 267 behind Favre (298).

Rob Gronkowski needs one more 1,000 yard season to move past Tony Gonzales and Jason Whitten for the most 1,000 yard seasons by an NFL tight end with five.

Gronkowski has 7,179 receiving yards, ninth all-time among NFL tight ends. He needs 802 to move into the top five.

Gronkowski needs 281 yards to move past Wes Welker (7,959) into second place on the Patriots receiving yards list. Behind only Stanley Morgan (10,352).

Bill Belichick has NFL-best five Super Bowl titles as head coach.

Belichick is tied for third all-time with Tom Landry with 250 regular season wins behind Don Shula (328) and George Halas (318).

Skimming the Sidelines

Jacob Hollister (Number 47) is the Patriots back up tight end. Jake played for the University of Wyoming Cowboys. Three ex-Viking football standouts played for the Cowboys. The late Steve 'The Tank' Adamson, Billy Levine and the late Paul Frazier.

Speaking about archivals the Winthrop Vikings lead the Revere Patriots (56-30-1) in their Thanksgiving rivalry. The Vikings travel to Della Russo Stadium in Revere on Thanksgiving morning.

The Vikings play host to the Lynn English Bulldogs on Friday night Oct. 19th at Miller Field. The Bulldogs will have the top rated quarterback in the Northeastern Conference Matt Severance returns for his senior season. Matt passed for over 1,000 yards, threw for 16 touchdown passes and rushed for 600 yards. Severance is on the radar of college programs like Bentley, Bryant, Sacred Heart and Harvard.

Ryan Fitzpatrick, the former Harvard quarterback is the backup quarterback on the Tampa Bay Bucs. He will start in the first three Tampa Bay games with James Winston on a three-game suspension. His top receiver at Harvard was Adam Jenkins, son of former WHS Superintendent Steve Jenkins. Adam is assistant coach at Central Connecticut State.

The 1948 Blue Devils

Seventy years ago the 1948 Winthrop High School football team were known as the 'Blue Devils.' The team colors were silver and blue.

The coach was Gordon Connor; assistant coaches were Ed MacFarland and Dick Stevenson. Coach MacFarland was head coach for 20 years.

John Booras was a member of the team and provided this picture. The team had many three-sport athletes. Tony Brogna is an active golfer at the Winthrop Golf Club.

Bob McDuffee still lives in town and his son Michael is a Winthrop town councilor.

The late Sheldon Bernstein is a member of the Winthrop high school athletic Hall of Fame.

Lou Racca was a longtime high school football coach at Malden and Wakefield. My brother Ed, who lives in Italy and Florida, played on the squad.

Jack DiMento, Carmen Merlino, Howie Swatzer, Bob Schiner and Lester Levey played at Miller Field.

CHICKEN ASPARAGUS ROLL-UPS

INGREDIENTS:

1/2 cup mayonnaise	16 spears fresh asparagus, trimmed
3 tablespoons Dijon mustard	4 skinless, boneless chicken breast halves
1 lemon, juiced and zested	4 slices provolone cheese
2 teaspoons dried tarragon	1 cup panko bread crumbs
1 teaspoon ground black pepper
1/2 teaspoon salt

Directions:

1. Preheat oven to 475 degrees F (245 degrees C). Grease a baking dish. In a bowl, mix together the mayonnaise, Dijon mustard, lemon juice, lemon zest, tarragon, salt, and pepper until the mixture is well combined. Set aside.
2. Cook asparagus in the microwave on High until bright green and just tender, 1 to 1 1/2 minutes. Set the asparagus spears aside. Place a chicken breast between two sheets of heavy plastic (resealable freezer bags work well) on a solid, level surface. Firmly pound the chicken breast with the smooth side of a meat mallet to a thickness of about 1/4 inch. Repeat with the rest of the chicken breasts.
3. Place 1 slice of provolone on each chicken breast, and top the cheese with 4 asparagus spears per breast. Roll the chicken breasts around the asparagus and cheese, making a tidy package, and place, seam sides down, in the prepared baking dish. With a pastry brush, apply a coating of the mayonnaise mixture to each chicken breast, and sprinkle each with panko crumbs, pressing the crumbs into the chicken to make a coating.
4. Bake in the preheated oven until the crumbs are browned and the chicken juices run clear, about 25 minutes.

tion and then later presented it as his own to the judge. I was so mad but then I thought, 'I could do this, I could be a probation officer'."

So Tassinari began applying to different court around the area that were hiring probation officers.

"I applied to 29 different jobs," said Tassinari. "My last DSS investigation in 1984 was horrible and I had to get out. I still remember going there, there was blood all over the house, the mother's head was smashed and the two kids were bleeding. Later that night I walked through the door and received yet another rejection letter from Quincy Court so I was drained. But Chelsea Court was still out there."

Finally the judge at Chelsea Court, who knew Tassinari as a familiar face and was familiar with his outstanding work at DSS, gave him his first shot in the probation department.

"I was in the juvenile court when I started in 1984," he said. "Today the big problem is drugs, back then it was stealing cars. In fact I was on the governor's appointed task force that included the FBI that was trying to stop this activity by teens. They weren't even stealing cars to support a habit it was just a living, a way to make money. They'd go to the chopshop in the morning, get a list of cars they needed and they were off and running."

Tassinari admits this was a different time in probation, an era where if an offender didn't follow the terms of their probation they were off to jail.

"Then slowly the drugs started to filter in and we had to take a different approach in Chelsea," said Tassinari.

Chelsea Court established one of the first drug courts in the area with the focus on rehabilitation instead of incarceration—something Tassinari continued in Eastie when he arrived here six years ago.

"We had to do something

After 34 years in the probation department, East Boston District Court's Chief of Probation Thomas Tassinari officially retired last week.

because locking these kids and adults up all the time wasn't working," said Tassinari. "We are really lucky in this area because we have a lot of services to deal with mental health issues for addicts like North Suffolk and rehabilitation facilities like the Meridian House. So with all these resources we thought it was a good idea to start using them to our advantage."

Tassinari said he saw the results of the new approach almost immediately.

"The thing we noticed right away in probation with the drug court is that these kids and adults were not committing crimes anymore," said Tassinari. "Sure they would slip up from time to time, use again or miss an AA or NA meeting but there was one five year period at the beginning where I did not violate anyone for a new crime that was enrolled in drug court."

However, Tassinari said the success was not his and the success of the program belonged to those who enrolled in the program, took it seriously and came out living a clean and sober life.

"I really can't take credit for their success unless I also take credit for their failures," he said. "I never got anyone clean and sober. All I did was show them where to go and how to do it if they really wanted to and change their life."

In the end Tassinari said whenever he's asked about his tenure in the probation department he always responds the same way.

"All I did for 34 years is teach kids and adults how to color inside the lines," he said. "In this world you have to color inside the lines. That's all I did. Once you go outside the lines that's when trouble starts. And I know people will tell me, 'Oh, that doesn't allow for free thinking or creativity'. No, you can be as creative and free thinking as you want—but inside the lines."

OBITUARIES

George 'Red' Bacigalupo

Retired captain and acting chief of Boston Fire Department

 George 'Red' Bacigalupo of Morton St., Winthrop, formerly of East Boston, passed away at home on Aug. 16. He was 95 years old.

Born in East Boston, the beloved son of the late Mary (Dolan) and Walter Bacigalupo, he was a resident of East Boston until 1955.

He enlisted in the U.S. Navy and served during World War II. After his discharge, he went to work for the Boston Fire Department serving on Engine 5 and Engine 56 in East Boston. He reached the rank of captain and also served as the acting chief of the department. He also worked for the United States Postal Service. He was a member of the Martin Pino Center in East Boston, the Beachmont VFW and an active communicant of St. John the Evangelist Church in Winthrop.

He was the devoted husband of the late Mary (Paolini) and the loving father of Carol Costello and her husband, Pat of Winthrop, George Bacigalupo and his late wife, Janine of North Reading, James Bacigalupo and his wife, Diana of Winthrop, Mary DeStefano of New Hampshire and John Bacigalupo of Revere; dear brother of Marie Johnson of Ashland and the late Katherine, Louise Gallagher, Walter, Jr., Joseph and Louis Bacigalupo and the cherished grandfather of Michael, Matthew, Kristen, Laura, Bridget, Keith, James, Daniel, Elizabeth, Mark, Stephanie, Brooke and Emily. He is also survived by 15 great-grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

His funeral will be conducted from the Caggiano-O'Malley-Frazier Funeral Home, Winthrop today, Thursday, Aug. 23, at 9 a.m. followed by a Funeral Mass in St. John the Evangelist Church, 320 Winthrop St., Winthrop, at 10 a.m. Interment to follow the mass will be in the Belle Isle section of Winthrop Cemetery. Memorial donations may be made to the Chelsea Soldier's Home 91 Crest Ave., Chelsea, MA 02150.

For directions or to sign the online guestbook go to www.caggianofuneralhome.com.

William Porter

Longtime Winthrop Town Meeting member, sports lover, active in the community

 With deep sadness we mourn the loss of William L. 'Bill' Porter who passed away surrounded by his loving family.

Billy was raised in East Boston and was a 1967 graduate of Sacred Heart High School. He proudly served in the Marine Corps from 1967-1969 and was stationed in Phu Bai, Vietnam. Following his military service, he worked in the local air-freight trucking business for many years and then the Winthrop Marketplace.

Bill was an active member of the community and one of the first ice hockey coaches for the youth hockey league in East Boston. He also served the community as a Winthrop Town Meeting member for many years. Billy was a lifelong member of the Winthrop Lodge of Elks and played on their softball team. With a love of sports, Billy took pleasure in coaching his son's Little League and his daughter's CYO Basketball teams. He treasured being able to play basketball alongside his son on the "Mondo's" and softball with his daughter.

Bill loved spending time with family and friends—whether grilling, camping or attending sporting events. Over the past 30 years, Billy and his family treasured spending fun family times at their cottage in North Conway, NH.

He was born on October 6, 1948 in East Boston to the late Arthur E. Jr. and Mary Jane (Sullivan.) He was the beloved husband of Anne (McDermott) for over 42 years, loving father of Timothy Porter and his wife, Diana of Framingham and Christine Caruso and her husband, Michael of Peabody, tremendously loving grandfather of Benjamin Porter and he also leaves many cousins, nieces, nephews and friends and his dear brother, Arthur Porter, III of Epping, N.H.

Family and friends are cordially invited to attend a celebration of his life from the Caggiano-O'Malley-Frazier Funeral Home, 147 Winthrop St., Winthrop, today, Thursday, Aug. 23, from 4 to 8 p.m. The funeral will be conducted from the funeral home on Friday, Aug. 24, at 9 a.m. followed by a Funeral Mass in St. John the Evangelist Church, 320 Winthrop St., Winthrop at 10 a.m. The funeral will conclude with military honors being presented immediately after the funeral mass.

Donations in Billy's name may be made to the New England Center and Home for Veterans, 17 Court St., P.O. Box 845257, Boston, MA 02284-5257. <https://www.necvh.org/donations/tribute-giving/>.

For directions or to sign the online guestbook go to www.caggianofuneralhome.com.

James 'Jimmy' Fay Jr.

Chelsea Housing Authority employee

James R. "Jimmy" Fay, Jr. of Winthrop and Revere died on Aug. 17 at the age of 43.

Jimmy was a talented athlete at an early age, excelling in youth hockey and Little League baseball and achieved major accomplishments and awards. His athletic talent carried on through his youth, teenage and high school years where he won major championships and even broke a pitching record in high school. Jimmy was employed by the City of Chelsea, working in with the Housing Authority.

He was the beloved husband of Carla M. Petrucci. Born in Lynn, the cherished son of James R. Fay Sr. and Elizabeth M. (Kinnally) Fay of Saugus, he was the dear brother of Erin L. Considine and her husband, Glen of Brighton, loving uncle of Glen Jr. and Ashley Considine, David Petrucci Jr, Kayla Rose Petrucci, and his godchild, Victoria McCrann, son-in-law of Roger and Mirella Petrucci and brother-in-law of David Petrucci and Paul Petrucci and his wife Cheri all of Winthrop.

A Funeral Mass will be celebrated in St. John the Evangelist Church, 320 Winthrop St., Winthrop, on Friday, Aug. 24, at 11:30 a.m. Relatives and friends are invited. Please go directly to the church.

Interment will follow in Holy Cross Cemetery-Malden. In lieu of flowers, donations in his memory can be made to the 11 Foundation-In Memory of Michael Mason at www.mase11foundation.org or to the Adult Brain Tumor Research Fund, c/o Patrick Wen, M.D., Dana Farber Cancer Institute, 450 Brookline Ave, Boston, MA 02215.

Funeral arrangements are by the Maurice W. Kirby Funeral Home, 210 Winthrop St., Winthrop. For guestbook, please visit:

www.mauricekirbyfh.com.

John Thomas Barry

Had a long career in aviation industry

John Thomas Barry of Salem, formerly of Winthrop, passed away at home on Friday, Aug. 17. He was 97 years old.

Born Sept. 12, 1920 in Lynn, the son of the late Dr. Thomas Barry and Ethlyn Barry, John had a long career in the aviation industry starting as an aircraft mechanic for Pratt & Whitney at La Guardia Airport in New York to superintendent of maintenance for Eastern Airlines at Logan Airport in Boston.

With a career that spanned 41 years, John saw tremendous changes in aviation. He enjoyed traveling after his retirement along with being an avid fan of the Boston Red Sox.

He was predeceased by his wives, Clara Barry, Gertrude Barry and M. Elaine Berardi (Barry). John is survived by his daughter Eileen Barry Johnson and her husband, Bruce Johnson of Winthrop, his sons, Thomas Leonard Barry of Salem and Kevin John Barry and his wife, Marcella Barry of Pleasanton, Calif., and his daughter, Patricia Ann Vernstrom and her husband, Jon Vernstrom of Hagerstown, Md.

He was also predeceased by his dear sisters, Ethyn, Betty and Shirley.

Friends and family are invited to visit with the family today, Thursday, Aug. 23 from 9 to 11 a.m. at the Maurice W. Kirby Funeral Home, 210 Winthrop St., Winthrop followed by Funeral Mass at St. John the Evangelist Church-Winthrop at 11:30 a.m. Burial will be at St. Mary Cemetery in Lynn. In lieu of flowers, donations in his memory can be made to North Shore Elder Services Program, Salem Ma. For guestbook, go to

In Loving Memory - First Anniversary

JOSEPH I. "JAY" CORDES IV

7/2/69-8/17/17

*I thought of you today,
But that is nothing new.
I thought about you yesterday and days before that too.
I think of you in silence,
I often speak your name.
All I have are memories and your picture in a frame.
Your memory is a keepsake
from which I'll never part.
God has you in His arms,
I have you in my heart.*

*We love and miss you very much, Dad.
Love, Joey, Amanda, Kristin, and Joseph.*

All types of services for all types of people.

Some people prefer traditional funeral services. Others prefer cremation. Some want an elaborate ceremony. Then there are others who don't want any ceremony at all. When it comes to funerals, there are as many options as there are people. And we take pride in being able to say we offer them all.

Second Anniversary Remembrance

MARK "FRITZ" PAULSON

December 26, 1959 - August 26, 2016

We always seem to take for granted that the people we love will always be here with us. Our daily lives can get so busy that we don't stop to appreciate the precious time that we have together. Learning to live our lives without you has been difficult, but so much of you still surrounds us and comforts us. Thank you for a beautiful journey together. You made our family strong. Your smile, your laugh are forever in our hearts and help us get through the ups and downs of life.

Love always~

Debbie, Mark, Kimmy, Jessica, Mitchell, Michael, Fritz, Frankie, Sophie & your pal Gordie

God Called Your Name

*We knew little that morning
God was going to call your name.
In life we loved you dearly,
in death we do the same.
It broke our hearts to lose you,
you did not go alone,
for part of us went with you,
the day God called you home.
If love could have saved you,
you would be with us now.
Our family chain is broken,
and nothing seems the same,
but as God calls us one by one,
the chain will link again.*

Always in our hearts
Mom, Eric, Joanne,
Donna & Lisa

ST. JUDE NOVENA

May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and preserved throughout the world now and forever. Sacred Heart of Jesus pray for us. St. Jude, worker of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude, helper of the hopeless, pray for us. Say this prayer 9 times a day. By the 8th day your prayer will be answered. It has never been known to fail. Publication must be promised.

My prayers have been answered.

IMT.

7th Year Anniversary John G. "Jack" Markley

Aug. 24, 2011 — Aug. 24, 2018

*I Am With You Still
I give you this one thought to keep
I am with you still - do not weep.
I am a thousand winds that blow.
I am the diamond glints on snow.
I am the sunlight on ripened grain.
I am the gentle autumn's rain.
When you awaken in the morning's hush,
I am the swift uplifting rush.
Of quiet birds in circled flight.
I am the soft stars that shine
at night.
Do not think of me as gone -
I am with you still - in each new dawn.*

Jack,
I truly believe this. Love always,
Your "Lady Friend" Edie

21ST CENTURY STUDENTS SUPPLY NEW BARRELS AT WINTHROP BEACH

If you've had a chance to walk along Winthrop Beach recently, you've likely seen the newly decorated trash barrels. These colorful additions to the beach are thanks to the students at the 21st Century summer program. Using their artistic talent and voices, the students came up with a variety of picturesque images and sayings that promote an environmentally friendly atmosphere.

OBITUARIES

Norman Siefert

February 7, 1920 — August 13, 2018

Norman F. 'Norman' Siefert was a longtime Winthrop resident. He was born on a snowy day at the Old Winthrop Hospital to Fredrick and Irene (Loeffler), who arrived there by sleigh from their home in Beachmont. He peacefully passed away at Care Dimensions Hospice House in Lincoln.

He attended Revere High School, was employed by GE in Lynn and later was foreman of the Model Shop at GTE Sylvania's Applied Research Lab in Waltham.

A World War II Navy Veteran and fixture along the Winthrop waterfront, he was an avid fisherman, champion sailor and advocate of clean water. He worked tirelessly to return the waters of Boston Harbor to the cleanliness he enjoyed in his youth as a Sea Scout. He was also instrumental in the completion of his dream that the town would have its own multi use boating facility for all to use. For his efforts the Ferry Terminal Building at the Winthrop Town Landing bears his name.

He was awarded a Certificate of Appreciation for "rendering meritorious service" from the Secretary of the United States Air Force for his rescue of an Air National Guard Pilot whose jet, flying in heavy fog, crashed into the waters behind his home on Court Road.

A Lifetime member and Past Commodore of the Cottage Park Yacht he was also a past Chairman of the "Regatta to benefit the Make A Wish Foundation of Massachusetts and Rhode Island." This regatta has continued for 24 years.

Norman is survived by his wife, Barbara, sons: Peter (Deborah), Jonathan (Jean), and David (Deborah), and grandchildren: Alec, Jackson, William and Jessica. He was preceded in death by his brother, Robert, and son, Jeffrey.

A celebration of his long, well lived life will be held at 3 p.m., September 22 at the Cottage Park Yacht Club, 76 Orlando Ave. Winthrop 02152. Memorial charitable donations can be made to "Make a Wish of Massachusetts and Rhode Island".

WINTHROP PARKS AND RECREATION HOSTS ANNUAL TOWN DAY

Photos by Kate Anslinger

The Winthrop Parks and Recreation staff held its annual Town Day event, where all were welcome to participate in park activities and enjoy a bite to eat. Staff members and volunteers manned the grill, offering complimentary hot dogs and hamburgers, and offering their skills painting faces and leading groups in activities.

Frankie Fabiano and Toni Tittlemore man the grill.

A group of kids gets ready to enjoy the bounce house.
