Residents gear up for new school year

By Kate Anslinger

With just one week left to go before the first day of school, parents, teachers and students are stocking up on school supplies, signing up for activities, and getting comfortable with the many transitions that are involved in the start of a school year. The new schedule is guaranteed to bring on more traffic and it is important for drivers to be mindful of students walking to and from school.

School committee members are encouraging parents to stay updated on news and upcoming activities, by checking the school's Facebook pages.

"We encourage parents to get involved and be informed," said School Committee member, Jen Powell. "Join the PTO, check out the school Facebook pages, and reach out to your student's teachers."

New pavilion dedicated to Winthrop's Mary Kelley

By Sue Ellen Woodcock

Never in her wildest dreams did Conservation Commissioner Mary Kelley think something would be named for her, but on Monday afternoon the new pavilion at the Belle Isle Marsh Marine Ecology Park and Walking Pathway off Morton Street was named to honor the work of Kelley.

Joining in the dedication were Lt. Gov. Karyn Polito, Speaker of the House Robert DeLeo, State Sen. Joe Boncore, DCR Commissioner Leo Roy, Town Manager Austin Faison, Town Council President Ron Vecchia, Councilor Jim Letterie, Friends of the Belle Isle Marsh and more.

Kelley, 81 years old and a retired schoolteacher, has served on the Conservation Commission as a member and the chairperson. She is now commissioner emeritus and Norm Hyett is now the chairman.

"She is the first woman in town to receive an honor like this," Hyett said. "And it is well deserved. Her goal was always to get things done correctly and to never compromise."

"Today we celebrate the partnership among municipal, state and community groups that worked together to protect and make accessible this marshland - helping to preserve our precious coastal environment and provide a place for the community to gather and explore," said House Speaker Robert A. DeLeo. "We also honor Mary Kelley for her decades of public service to the community as a steward of Winthrop's open spaces."

"Mary been on the Conservation Commission since before the Blizzard of '78 that hit Winthrop hard," said Barbara

Police Department receives earmark for ALICE training

By Kate Anslinger

Winthrop Police Department has received a $250,000

earmark grant for child safety and dedicated a portion of the grant to ALICE training for the School Department. AL-ICE, which stands for Alert, Lockdown, Inform, Counter, and Evacuate, is the principal training solution designed to increase a group and individual's odds of survival during a violent intruder event. Enacted after the tragedies at Columbine, Virginia Tech, and Sandy Hook, the training strategy goes beyond the conventional lockdown training that teachers have received in the past and strives for a more aggressive approach.

"ALICE training gives staff members more options," said Police Chief Terence Delehan. "When people fight back, there ends up being far less victims. This is a switch from traditional active shooter training and is a more formal approach."

The beginning stage of the training will be rolled out at the start of the 2018-2019 school year and the goal is to get it done as soon as possible. Teachers will have an opportunity to work on the online portion of the training on the first day of school. Following the online training, skilled instructors from the school district, Fire Department and Police Department will lead the in-person exercises that are designed to educate staff members on the various options when faced with an active shooter situation. All school employees must receive the training and will be required to demonstrate necessary skills, and in turn, instructors will provide them with advice on appropriate measures before they are officially certified.

"This is an important cooperative effort to ensure that we are prepared in case of an emergency," said School Committee member and parent, Jen Powell. "It's great to have everyone coming together for the safety of our students."

This will be one of the many efforts designed to bring a sense of partnership between the school district and the Fire and Police departments, adding yet another level of safety in the community. The training will be an ongoing process. After School Superintendent Lisa Howard certifies that all staff members have taken the online training, the real-life scenario courses will be scheduled and continue throughout the year and into next year.

"This training confirms the ongoing commitment of the school district, the police department, and the fire department to maximize every avenue to keep our kids safe," said Howard. "Our goal is to find additional support systems and put them in place. We are doing everything in our power to ensure multiple layers of safety and we are dedicated to protecting our students."

Both the Social Sentinel and ALICE programs were made possible through state funding secured by House Speaker Robert DeLeo on behalf of the town of Winthrop.

"I'd like to revisit the ways some things are set up now. To work through the justifications of previous decisions to see how things have gotten the way that they are. First I want to get a handle on the budget. I'm a budget numbers jockey sort of guy."

"If you can follow the money you can understand the way the decisions were made," he added.

The Center Business District, the infrastructure, the sale or use of the old middle school on Pauline Street, at least two legal issues with the police department, the desire to have a new public safety building and a morale boost for town employees, faced Faison the moment he came to town.

Faison will have to find a new assistant town manager since Joe Domelowicz is headed to serve in Hamilton as the town manager. Domelowicz's last day is Sept. 4.

"Joe is an asset. He has so much institutional knowledge," Faison said.

Faison said whoever is hired for the assistant town manager position will also have hopefully have a strong planning background and a financial head.

The subject of a town planner has been batted around for at least two years, Faison said the subject also came up during his interviews with the town.

"There's a real need for a planner to both help the community and realize the vision that we're going for, but also be able to walk people through the particulars," Faison said.

He wants to make sure people are being heard and have an opportunity to advocate for how they see things.

In his former position in Brookline, Faison often worked with the planning department. The last project he worked on there was rezoning for the marijuana regulations. While he worked in Somerville he also worked on a zoning overhaul and budgets. He also worked on budgets in Brookline.

"My job now is working with the town council and the council president, and working to advocate for the town department heads," Faison said. "Ultimately, I just want to make a community a good place to live."

OUR Opinions

GET OUT AND VOTE

This Tuesday, the day after Labor Day, is primary election day across the state for both national and state offices.

Although primary elections in Massachusetts generally are of little or no consequence because of the overwhelming Democratic voting enrollment and because most Democrats run unopposed, this year's primary election is different.

Thanks to the chaos that reigns throughout the country because of the situation in the White House, every election this year -- both primary and final -- has taken on more significance than in any non-presidential year election in our nation's history.

The elections of 1860 (prior to the start of the Civil War) and 1932 (when we were in the midst of the Great Depression) arguably were the most important Presidential-year elections, but the current election cycle of 2018 may be even more significant than either of those.

The pundits talk much these days about the existential threat to our democracy and institutions because of the situation in the White House. Unfortunately, a good argument can be made either way and only time will tell.

However, what undeniably is true is that our democracy certainly will come to an end if we fail to exercise the most important right we have as Americans -- the right to vote. There is no greater threat to America than our own apathy.

We urge all of our readers to get and vote this Tuesday. A strong voter turnout not only will be determinative of the candidates who move on to the November final election, but it also will send a message to those who seek to destroy our nation (and that is not an overstatement) that we will exercise our right to vote to thwart them.

SEN. JOHN MCCAIN

In an era when cynicism and a lack of faith in our political leaders and institutions is at an all-time high -- the roots of which can be traced back to the 1960s and the subsequent Watergate scandal -- Sen. John McCain truly stood out as a man whose essential belief in the values that have made America the greatest nation in the history of the world never wavered.

John McCain was a legitimate war hero whose story as a prisoner of war in North Vietnam is well-known by anyone reading this column. In contrast to the phony politicians who staked a claim to patriotism, John McCain was the real deal.

Throughout his career, Sen. McCain called out the hypocrites and fakers -- he knew one when he saw one -- and was known as the leading maverick in the U.S. Senate whose stands on the issues often crossed party lines.

His dramatic "thumbs down" on the vote to kill Obamacare -- after Sen. McCain had been diagnosed with brain cancer and he made a special trip back to the Senate floor for the vote -- will stand forever as one of the most iconic moments in the history of the Senate.

However, John McCain was not a perfect man, as are none of us. He became enmeshed in a banking scandal in the early-1980s and he was not always the maverick lawmaker that he claimed to be. He also often was cantankerous and stubborn.

However, the outpouring of support and recollections from all sides of the political spectrum in recent days attest to the basic decency and values that governed his life.

Former CIA chief John Brennan said in an interview Friday evening (just prior to Sen. McCain's passing) that though Sen. McCain and he often disagreed vehemently about foreign policy matters, Brennan never had any doubt about McCain's patriotism and commitment to the values that have made America great.

John McCain was an American hero whose presence in Washington was needed more than ever. He will be missed.

PLASTIC BAG PETITION ONLINE

Dear Editor,

We have a single-use plastic bag ban online petition up on the Mother's Out Front Winthrop web page. Here is a link to the petition; Please send it to anyone you know who lives in Winthrop and ask them to sign. We have a date to present to the Board of Health on Sept. 18 at 6 p.m. and to the Town Council directly afterward at 7 p.m. and it would be wonderful to have many signatures. We have over 100 so far. Winthrop should join the other 81 communities in Massachusetts who have banned single use plastic bags. https://ma.mothersoutfront.org/ban_plastic_bags_winthrop.

Thanks for your help. And thank you, Mish Gielis, for getting us up and running! It looks beautiful.

MCAULIFFE FOR DA

Dear Editor,

I believe that the race for Suffolk County district attorney may be the most important race on the ballot in Winthrop on Sept. 4!

As someone who has spent most of my career concerned with the issues of public health and safety, including working as chief of staff to two Middlesex county sheriffs, it is vitally important that we choose the right person as our next district attorney.

I ask you to join me in voting for Shannon McAuliffe, who is running for Suffolk County District Attorney in the Democratic Primary.

Shannon McAuliffe is exactly the kind of district attorney that Winthrop and all of Suffolk County deserves, and she is a realistic progressive reformer who can definitely win this race. I know that Shannon has not only the knowledge and experience to help reform the system, but most importantly, she has the passion and desire to do so.

Shannon understands that the current status quo in the Suffolk County district attorney's office is just not good enough! She was a public defender in Suffolk County for 12 years, and as Director of Roca in Boston and Chelsea, she helped young people caught up in the criminal justice system transform their lives.

As our DA, Shannon will drive the change needed to build a stronger, healthier, and safer community for us all. She will be smart and strategic on crime, not just tough on crime.

Shannon is not a politician. She did not decide to run only when the current district attorney decided not to seek re-election. She was in the race already because she believed it was time to have a conversation with voters about what really works in changing our criminal justice system.

As a first-time candidate, Shannon has been impressive, demonstrating the ability and the willingness to do what is necessary to win. She has worked non-stop across Suffolk County and has attended every forum to discuss the real issues that matter.

Shannon has secured a number of strong political endorsements, including Suffolk County Sheriff Steve Tompkins, and those of many local labor unions.

For more information, please check out Shannon's web site at www.mcauliffe-forda.com. A vote for Shannon McAuliffe for district attorney on Sept. 4, will make a real difference in Suffolk County.

ARTICLE 841 - 2007 - GREEN'S HOUSE FIRE

On Saturday Nov. 3, 2007, at about 3:30 a.m., Mike Herbert, who at that time lived at the lower end of "The Strand Way" near the entrance to Deer Island, awoke to a brilliant light shining in his window from the fire at the last house on Taft Avenue. He immediately reported the fire and then had the great foresight to rush out and photograph the burning building as shown in picture one.

Before the 1938 hurricane pretty much closed in Shirley Gut, this waterway was an open passage from the Boston Harbor to the ocean as shown in picture two. In 1770, Shirley Gut was over 1,000 feet wide. As the years went by, it slowly filled in to 450 feet in 1860 and then it had narrowed down to 280 feet in 1900 when this picture was taken. The Taft Inn, constructed in the 1830s, occupied land to the right of Taft Avenue from Maryland Avenue South toward Shirley Gut until it was raised in 1952. The subject house was built just after 1920, by Jeremiah Green, as a summer cottage on these wetlands approximately 100 feet from the edge of the gut just behind where the group of people is shown gathered to watch the sightseeing boat enter Boston Harbor. In 1940/41, the United States Army Corps of Engineers finished filling in the Gut to provide easier access to the World War II Fort Dawes then being constructed at the lower tip of Deer Island. This U. S. Government site operated in a number of military oriented functions until it was finally closed down in the late 1960s. By the 1970s, the subject "Green" house was boarded up as shown in picture three. It remained that way until it succumbed to the previously mentioned fire. After the fire, the site appeared as depicted in picture four. This area, from Adams Street to the Massachusetts Water Resource Authority's parking lot at the entrance to the sewerage treatment facility, is still considered wetlands (half of which is located in Winthrop, the second half in Boston) which could complicate any future development of this area.

WINTHROP POLICE ENHANCE SCHOOL SAFETY EFFORTS THROUGH TRAINING AND TECHNOLOGY

FIRST SUFFOLK AND MIDDLESEX DISTRICT HOSTS SCOTT LIVELY, CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

The First Suffolk and Middlesex Senatorial District hosted an informative session highlighting Scott Lively, Republican Candidate for Massachusetts Governor. This event was held at the American Legion in Revere. In attendance were members of the Winthrop Republican Town Committee, and members of the Republican Committees in the First Suffolk and Middlesex District. After Dr. Lively's speech, there was a question and answer period from the spirited audience.

Scott Lively received one-third of the Delegate vote at the Republican State Convention, held in Worcester this past April. This percentage of Delegate votes garnered him a ballot spot in the September 4th Primary. Scott Lively is a Constitutional Law Attorney, Pastor and author of six books. He is Conservative, Pro-Life, Pro-Second Amendment, Pro-Family and very much Pro-President Trump.

tial threats to student and staff safety that arise on social media platforms.

Unlike more traditional means of monitoring social media, Social Sentinel will empower police to receive alerts to potential threats, instances of harassment and personal crises shared online, while respecting the privacy of the general public.

The new technology, through its limitations on monitoring, works to prevent unwarranted surveillance of the general public and instead emphasizes the content and context of messages to help users evaluate potential threats on a global scale. The program also features oversight that prevents abuse by evaluating the extent of which law enforcement or school staff members are using the software.

Additionally, the Winthrop Police Department will be conducting ALICE (Alert, Lockdown, Inform, Counter, Evacuate) active shooter training in town schools, providing students, teachers and staff with the skills they need to respond immediately should an active shooting situation arise.

"These are essential, common sense steps that we're taking as a community to ensure that our kids are safe both online and at school," Chief Delehanty said.

Both the Social Sentinel and ALICE programs were made possible through state funding secured by House Speaker Robert DeLeo on behalf of the town of Winthrop.

Bishop, of the Friends of Belle Isle Marsh. "She worked on the entire beach project permitting process, the construction of three new schools and Miller Field, airport expansion, the creation of Belle Isle Marsh Reservation by the old MDC and more recently the addition of the Zop-po property, now called the Kilmartin Path, and the Bonacorso property, now called the Belle Isle Marine Ecology Park, the DEP Emergency declaration which allowed houseboats at Atlantis Marina, and lots more."

The $1.2 million in funding for the Belle Isle Marsh Marine Ecology Park and Walking Pathway was obtained through grant work done by Assistant Town Manager Joe Domelowicz in conjunction with the Seaport Economic Council.

In 2015, the Baker-Polito administration's Seaport Economic Council enabled the town to construct a pier-supported wooden walkway on the public land that borders the marsh. This construction further opens the only urban Great Salt Marsh in Massachusetts for visitors, allowing the town to leverage its natural assets for education and economic development.

"When Gov. Baker and I re-established the Seaport Economic Council in 2015, we focused on supporting local infrastructure projects that used coastal assets to create economic development opportunities like Belle Isle Marsh Marine Ecology Park," said Lt. Gov. Karyn Polito, chair of the Seaport Economic Council. "It is an honor to return to Winthrop today and to stand with legislative partners like Speaker DeLeo and Sen. Boncore to formally open a park that will benefit the community and will build on Massachusetts' blue economy."

"The Belle Isle Marsh Marine Ecology Park and Marsh Walk is an incredible addition to the area, which has created important connections that will enable people of all abilities with excellent opportunities to explore and appreciate this phenomenal natural resource," said Department of Conservation and Recreation Commissioner Leo Roy. "The completion of this project serves as a great example of the Baker-Polito administration's commitment to working with local communities, advocacy groups, and other stakeholders to foster strong partnerships that directly benefit the public."

"Belle Isle is among Winthrop's greatest natural resources," said State Sen. Joseph Boncore. "The Marine Ecology Park will not only serve as a scenic walking path and recreational resource, but also as a valuable outdoor learning center for Winthrop's children and students."

Now open, a walker in Winthrop will be able to walk from the intersection of Pleasant Street and Main Street, along

FROM THE PRESS BOX Plenty of Competition

By: Jim Lederman

The Vikings open the 2018 season on Friday night, Sept. 7, with Pentucket "Sachems" invading Miller Field.

Coach Jon Cadigan is excited about the competition for starting positions on his team. "We are preaching competition," said the Vikings first year head coach. The Vikings have 48 players on the roster. This is one of the largest turnouts for the Vikings; the squad has 12 seniors, six juniors, 19 sophomores and 11 freshmen.

"We have three new seniors who did not play last year," said the enthusiastic Coach. Bivain Chalmers, a three-sport stand out (hockey and lacrosse) has been a big addition. Gary Collaku and Dan O'Neil are two more seniors. The Vikings had a scrimmage in the 100-degree heat at Miller Field on Wednesday. They will travel to MacDonal Stadium in Malden for a game scrimmage with the Malden 'Golden Tornadoes' on Friday night at 7 p.m.

The captains elect are Feedle Small, Mike McConne and Chris Castro.

NEWS FROM AROUND THE REGION

CHELSEA POLICE RECEIVE SAFETY GRANT

CHELSEA – The Chelsea Police Department will increase impaired driving patrols on local roads with grant funds from the Highway Safety Division of the Executive Office of Public Safety and Security (EOPSS). Chelsea Police will join local departments across the state, as well as the Massachusetts State Police in the national Drive Sober or Get Pulled Over enforcement mobilization and public information campaign.

This year's campaign will urge drivers drinking alcohol or using marijuana and other drugs to plan ahead and designate a sober driver, use a ride-share service or take public transportation.

"Impaired drivers create a dangerous situation for everyone around them, threatening the destruction of lives and entire families," said Chief Brian A. Kyes. "This grant will help increase our efforts during the busy summer travel season to keep our roads free of impaired drivers and avoid the tragedy they wreak."

"Getting behind the wheel after drinking alcohol, using marijuana or both is one of the most dangerous things drivers can do," said Jeff Larason, director of the Highway Safety Division. "A little planning can save your life or someone else's. Regret or remorse won't bring someone back."

Massachusetts Data: Marijuana or marijuana-type drugs were the most prevalent types of drugs found in people killed in crashes from 2011 to 2016.

From 2015 to 2016, alcohol-impaired driving fatalities increased 9 percent (109 to 119).

From 2011-2015, 82 percent of impaired drivers in fatal crashes were men.

From 2011-2015, 45 percent of all alcohol-related driver fatalities were ages 21 to 34.

National Data from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration:

Approximately one-third of all traffic crash fatalities in the United States involve drunk drivers. On average, more than 10,000 people have died each year (2012-2016) in drunk-driving crashes. To put it into perspective, that's equal to about 20 jumbo jets crashing, with no survivors.

In 2016, almost one in five children (14 and younger) killed in traffic crashes were killed in drunk-driving crashes. Fifty-four percent of the time, it was the child's own driver who was drunk.

Drugs were present in 43 percent of the fatally-injured drivers with a known test result in 2015, more frequently than alcohol was present.

NHTSA's 2013-2014 roadside survey found drugs in 22 percent of all drivers both on weekend nights and on weekdays.

Tetrahydrocannabinol (THC)—the chemical responsible for most of marijuana's psychological effects—slows reaction times, impairs cognitive performance, and makes it more difficult for drivers to keep a steady position in their lane.

Mixing alcohol and marijuana may dramatically produce effects greater than either drug on its own.

WONDERLAND PARK DEMOLITION IS ON TARGET

BROADWAY TO BE CHANGED TO TWO-WAY

CHELSEA – The Chelsea Traffic Commission voted 4-1 on Tuesday night to recommend that the Broadway business corridor be changed from a one-way, to a two-way street – the culmination of more than a year of planning.

Carolyn Vega was the lone vote on the Commission against the two-way plan. She wasn't opposed to the overall plan, but desired to recommend a six-month trial period.

The remaining Commissioners preferred to simply recommend the two-way plan. The plan will now go to the City Council for a final vote at the Sept. 10 meeting, though it could be put off until the Sept. 24 meeting.

Many people were for it and many were against the plan, but in the end City Manager Tom Ambrosino said that if it didn't work out, it would easily

The battle for the Democratic and Republican nominations for governor highlight the slew of statewide races that Boston residents will vote on when they go to the polls for the Sept. 4 primary election.

For the Democratic nomination, Bob Massie is taking on Jay Gonzalez. Massie is an author, activist, and former leader of several nonprofits who has overcome many challenges in life, including a battle with hemophilia, while Gonzalez is an attorney, the former secretary of administration and finance in the Patrick administration, and the former chair of the Massachusetts Board of Early Education and Care. The Gazette asked both candidates to give their pitch to Winthrop voters.

Bob Massie

"In a state as wealthy as Massachusetts, it is wrong that there are people who are saddled with thousands in dollars of debt because they chose to go to college. It's absurd that people are all too often forced to choose between going to the doctor or paying their rent, and it is dangerous not to act on climate change. As governor, I will not just pay lip service to these issues, but change the structural flaws in our government that have prevented us from moving forward on tuition free college, Medicare for All, and robust climate change reforms. I know that Massachusetts can be a bold, progressive leader, and I'm excited to bring us into the 21st century."

Jay Gonzalez

"I'm running for governor to fight for all the little guys and take on the big challenges we face. I will work to increase our affordable housing supply, ensure every child has access to affordable, high-quality childcare and preschool, and fix our broken transportation system. As a cabinet secretary for former Gov. Deval Patrick I believe I have the leadership experience to actually make a meaningful difference in people's lives. I am proud to be endorsed by the Democratic Party, Jamaica Plain Progressives, City Councilors Michelle Wu and Matt O'Malley and State Sen. Sonia Chang-Diaz. I'm asking for your vote."

On the Republican side, Gov. Charlie Baker, a former CEO of Harvard Pilgrim Health Care who served in both former Gov. Bill Weld and former Gov. Paul Cellucci administrations, is facing-off against Scott Lively, a pastor who espouses homophobic and fringe views.

Gov. Charlie Baker

"Lt. Governor Polito and I are grateful for the opportunity to serve communities like Jamaica Plain and Mission Hill across Massachusetts, and remain committed to working with local partners, including Mayor Walsh and his administration, to achieve our shared goals around housing and economic development. Since 2015, we have pursued a bipartisan, results-oriented approach that is moving Massachusetts in the right direction. We look forward to continuing this approach in a second term, investing over $8 billion in the MBTA, expanding on historic support for public schools and supporting a strong economy. We humbly ask for your support and vote."

Scott Lively

"I am Republican Dr. Scott Lively, constitutional law attorney and pastor. Our biggest challenge is Public Corruption and I will end it by auditing every government department for waste, fraud and abuse, and prosecute the crooks. I will end patronage and publish clear ethical standards for the Judges, State Police, DCE, the MBTA and every other dysfunctional agency. I will use every saved dollar to fix roads and bridges and end opioid addiction, refunding the balance to taxpayers. And I will cut my salary 20 percent on Day 1 to prove I mean business! Please Vote Scott Lively on Sept. 4."

There is also a competitive race for the Republican nomination for senator with a three candidate race: Geoff Diehl, John Kingston, and Beth Joyce Lindstrom.

Beth Joyce Lindstrom

"When Senator Warren first ran for office, she stated she had done three things in her life: teach, write books and 'throw rocks.' But to get legislation passed and to solve problems you have to be able to work with others. And no one wants to work with a rock thrower. I will contrast Senator Warren's empty failures with my own record of success — as a mom and wife, as the first female Director of the Massachusetts Republican Party, as the state's Secretary of Consumer Affairs, and as an entrepreneur and a small business owner."

Geoff Diehl

"There is only one candidate in this race that has helped your wallet. I led the successful effort to repeal automatic gas tax hikes—saving taxpayers $2 billion. While others talk, I've taken action for you by passing the only Massachusetts tax cut in 7 years. We need a Senator who will put Massachusetts first. That's why I have plans to help our veterans, fight the opioid epidemic, and grow jobs and wages. I'm the only candidate endorsed by law enforcement. On Sept. 4 I would be honored to have your vote in the Republican Primary. Vote the real Diehl."

John Kingston did not respond to a request for comment.

Meanwhile, incumbent Bill Galvin is facing a fight for the Democratic nomination for the state Secretary of State with Boston City Councilor Josh Zakim entering the fray.

Bill Galvin

"Overseeing our elections is just one of the 16 responsibilities of the Secretary of State, including getting an accurate census count and historic preservation. I make sure our elections are secure and accurate, and that every candidate complies with the law. My opponent is keeping the door open to dark money, and that is very concerning. Our office also oversees lobbying and financial regulation, and helps choose the head of the Office of Campaign and Political Finance. Being Secretary of State is the greatest job I could ever have asked for. I humbly ask for your vote on Sept. 4."

John Zakim

"I am running to be your next Secretary of State to increase access to government for everyone in Massachusetts. There are several avenues to do that, but the one we've focused most heavily on is increasing voting rights.

In my campaign, I have talked every day about a few common-sense steps that we should take that would drastically increase registration and turnout. They are same-day registration, automatic voter registration, no-excuse absentee ballots, weekend voting and expanding early voting. My opponent has had 24 years to support these, but showed no interest until we challenged him. Massachusetts deserves better than that."

Crowded field for district attorney race

By Peter Shanley

With Suffolk County District Attorney (DA) Dan Conley announcing earlier this year that he will not seek re-election after leading the office for more than 15 years, a crowded field has emerged to replace him.

Five candidates—Evanandro Carvalho, Linda Champion, Greg Henning, Shannon McAuliffe, and Rachael Rollins—are facing-off for the Democratic nomination on Sept. 4. Greg Henning, who is viewed as right leaning, appears to be the favorite with the remaining candidates splitting the progressive vote. The Gazette recently contacted the five candidates to ask them their pitch for Winthrop voters.

McAuliffe
“I have always chosen the hard fight because it was the right fight. First, I never prosecuted one way like the other candidates and now claim, ‘Sorry, I’ll try being fairer now.’ Second, as a 12-year Suffolk County public defender and long-time Suffolk County resident, I have more experience in these very criminal courts than any opponent. Third, I led two sites at Roca, an innovative organization literally proven to reduce recidivism amongst Suffolk County’s court-involved young adults. Finally, I am the only candidate with a proven track record of fighting against injustice and doing different to get different results.”

Rollins
“The primary responsibility of the DA is to keep our communities safe. I will do that – but I will do it differently. My administration will give voice to victims and survivors of crime. We will work to solve the 1,000+ unsolved homicides in Boston. We will seek to end wealth and race-based disparities by tackling the cash bail system. I understand that mental illness and substance abuse require treatment, not incarceration. I will work hand-in-hand with our diverse communities. With 20+ years of legal and leadership experience, I can implement real progressive criminal justice reform. Get involved at rollins4da.com.”

Carvalho
“I’m running because it’s time for a DA from our community. It’s time for a DA with the leadership and training to transform the office and keep our communities safe. It’s time to elect a DA with a proven record of fighting for the people.

I’m a former assistant district attorney and current state representative from Dorchester, where I live with my wife and daughter. I went to Madison Park High School. I led the fight for criminal justice reform on Beacon Hill and as the DA for Suffolk County, I’ll make the office more accountable, equitable, and transparent.”

Champion
“This race is not about politics, it’s about the community. As someone who has lived in poverty, been homeless, experienced the trauma of do-estic violence and substance abuse and endured gender and racial discrimination, I feel I can lead the district attorney’s office through the difficult challenges that are ahead of us. I will lead the DA’s office away from a scorecard mentality and toward reducing recidivism through community collaboration, with the overall goal of crime prevention.”

Henning
“I’m running for DA because I have a vision for a safe and vibrant Suffolk County for everyone. Your next DA needs to be ready on day one to stem the tide of gun violence, combat the opioid epidemic, and build trust between law enforcement and the community. As an assistant district attorney for 10 years, I worked to deliver justice to victims of shootings and other violent crimes. As a teacher and mentor, I worked with young people to steer them away from crime in the first place. I hope to continue serving this community as your next DA.”

Candidate for Suffolk County DA, Evanandro Carvalho with Speaker of the House Bob DeLeo.

Carvalho, candidate for Suffolk County DA, endorsed by State Rep. Vincent and Speaker DeLeo

Evanandro Carvalho’s campaign for Suffolk County District Attorney announced the endorsements of state Rep. RoseLee Vincent and Speaker of the House Robert DeLeo. “I am honored by their endorsements and confidence in my experience as a prosecutor who can lead Suffolk County forward,” said Carvalho. “Working together in the legislature, we have made bold, progressive reforms to our criminal justice system. As district attorney, I will build upon that record and commit to fair treatment for our community.”

Born in Cape Verde, Evanandro immigrated to Dorchester at the age of 15. His mother worked three jobs to support the family, and Evanandro worked after school as a janitor and factory worker. Carvalho graduated at the top of his class at Madison Park High, and went to earn degrees from UMass Amherst and Howard University School of Law. As an assistant district attorney prosecuting gun crimes, Carvalho saw the cycles of poverty and violence that put our young men and women in the system. Carvalho has served as state representative since 2014 representing the communities of Dorchester and Roxbury. He lives with his wife, Ashley, and their daughter, Eliana in Uphams Corner. Henning plans to fight opioid epidemic on all fronts

Candidate for Suffolk County District Attorney Greg Henning announced his plan to fight the opioid epidemic in Suffolk County by stationing accessible drug treatment providers at courthouses, expanding drug court sessions to every district court, investigating overdose cases to remove deadly drugs from the street, and taking an active role in advocating for treatment options.

“In my 10 years as an assistant district attorney, I’ve seen the effects of the opioid epidemic while working with victims and defendants. We must do a better job of getting people treatment and guiding them to recovery resources, rather than punishing them for their addiction or leaving them to fend for themselves,” said Greg Henning. “The district attorney’s office has a unique opportunity to provide help immediately after people come in contact with the criminal justice system for drug possession offenses. With drug treatment providers stationed at the courthouse, those suffering from addiction would be offered immediate medical assistance, be provided with help accessing recovery programs, and begin working toward treatment at the moment they need it most.”

Greg’s plan would be to station recovery coaches and addiction specialists from programs like Road to Recovery at courthouses right outside of arraignment sessions. Greg’s office would seek to routinely divert people charged with drug possession crimes out of the courts and into drug treatment programs. Before heading out of court, those suffering from addiction would go through an intake process with a trained recovery professional, rather than being left to fend for themselves and arrange for treatment on their own. Greg would also seek to expand the drug court sessions currently being used in courthouses throughout Massachusetts. These sessions work with treatment providers to put those suffering from addiction on a path to recovery. These courts enlist a person’s family and their community to address the problem of addiction, a method that has already proven to be successful in Suffolk County, but is still absent from some of our courts. Greg would work with the trial court so that every one of the district courts has an available drug court session.

“Choosing to merely ‘not prosecute’ people arrested for drug possession offenses would be irresponsible in the midst of such a severe crisis,” said Henning. “As the office that is often the first government institution to have contact with someone struggling with addiction, we should do more, not less.”

In addition to increasing access to drug treatment programs at the courthouse, Greg’s plan includes a proposal to put resources toward investigating fatal overdose cases in order to identify who sold drugs to the victim, find the source of particularly deadly batches of heroin or fentanyl, and remove those deadly drugs from the street. As district attorney, Greg would also lobby the legislature for better, more readily available drug treatment options in Suffolk County, especially an increase in the number of treatment facilities and beds for those suffering from addiction. Greg would be an advocate for the reopening of the Long Island Shelter and rebuilding of the bridge to access that facility.

“We see the effects of the opioid epidemic everywhere. In 2006, one of my closest friends ended up behind bars for a crime designed to feed his addiction. I watched him suffer the effects of withdrawal while he sat inside of a prison cell. As an assistant district attorney, I’ve consoled a mother and father begging me to request bail to hold their son overnight. They knew this was the only way to keep him off the street and away from drugs until they could locate an available bed at a treatment facility. I have worked with victims and witnesses who asked for help with their own addiction, not knowing where else they could turn,” said Henning. “The district attorney’s office comes into contact with thousands of people suffering from drug addiction each year, and we can use our power to proactively guide those struggling toward treatment.”

Greg’s full opioid plan is available at www.greghenning.com/opioidplan/. It’s the third policy plan released by Henning, following a plan to fully staff a countywide Unsolved Shootings Unit that would investigate nonfatal shootings and remove more guns from our streets; and a plan to create a mentorship program called Law Enforcement Early Diversion, or LEED, which would pair law enforcement professionals, such as assistant district attorneys and police officers, with young people throughout Suffolk County.

The Democratic Primary for the open race to replace outgoing Suffolk County District Attorney Dan Conley is on Tuesday, Sept. 4, and the general election is on Tuesday, Nov. 6.

For ten years, Greg has worked as an assistant district attorney in the Suffolk County DA’s office, including time as head of the Gun Prosecution Task Force and as head of the Gang Unit, which is focused on shootings and other violent crimes in Suffolk County. In addition to his work at the DA’s office, Greg built a reputation as a beloved teacher and mentor in the community, and his career has been marked by a deep passion for reaching young people.

In 2009, Greg started volunteering, coaching, and tutoring at College Bound Dorchester. He left the DA’s office in 2011 to become a teacher at Boston Preparatory Charter Public School in Hyde Park, teaching eighth grade English and 12th grade constitutional law. Even after he returned to the DA’s office in 2013, he remained a consistent part of his students’ lives.

Son of Boston news reporter John Henning, Greg grew up in Boston, graduated from Harvard in 2002 with a degree in government, and received his juris doctorate in 2005 from the University of Virginia School of Law. He completed a clerkship for the United States Court of Appeals for the 11th Circuit in Macon, Ga., before returning to Boston to begin work as a prosecutor. Greg lives in Dorchester with his girlfriend, who is a special education teacher in Boston.

the issue for two years with an award-winning consultant team, and then not make the changes they recommend.

Consultant Kevin Dandrade, of TEC, said they believed Chelsea could successfully make the change.

The Traffic Commission also recommended sweeping circulation changes to Fay Square, Chelsea Square, Bellingham Square and the City Hall front area – where Broadway will also become a two-way street.

The changes also include new smart traffic lights which will be at all Broadway intersections and will work via Wi-Fi to help control and time the traffic lights in real time.

STATE REP. DEBATE FEATURES LIVELY QUESTIONS

EVERET - To date, the only state representative debate to include all three candidates took place last Tuesday, Aug. 14, at the Parlin Library – and each candidate put on their game face and gave impressive answers to a packed house.

State Rep. Joe McGonagle, Candidate Gerly Adrien and Candidate Steve 'Stat' Smith took to the front of the room in front of about 100 people gathered for the question-and-answer forum run by the Everett Democratic Committee. A representative from the League of Women Voters, a Newton resident, moderated the questions and the format.

After a two-minute introduction by each candidate, the questions – where were not known to the candidates – were asked.

There were more than 12 questions asked of the candidates and there were more than a few interesting answers, with housing and education funding being the predominate topics.

Education funding came up first of all.

McGonagle was on the forefront for that issue, as the House was said to have shot down the funding proposal that the Senate had passed. With McGonagle being in the House, he was ready to explain.

"Nobody wanted this more than I did," he said. "We couldn't get that fully passed in our last budget...We need to make sure we talk to those who are against it and find out why and work with them and make sure they have the votes. I am on the House Ways & Means Committee and we are close to these changes...I don't want to get ahead of myself, but I would like to see that change in the Supplemental Budget because that's how hurt Everett and cities like it were."

Adrien said there is no one but her who has not had the chance to change the formula, and if elected, she will make sure it happens.

"Both of my opponents were in the House when the formula was broken for our children," she said, noting that she would support increased funding for all categories of students, including low income and English Language Learners (ELL). "Sen. Sal (DiDomenico) sat on the Committee and the Senate voted to pass this. The House didn't...If you are part of the problem, we need to talk about who is the solution."

Smith said he was certain with more time, the formula would be changed and he would do everything in his power to help that along.

"We have to change the formula," he said. "The formula needs to see that and provide it were."

the funding so all of these kids are counted. Education is the way out of this mess. That's how we'll change inequality, jobs and incomes...It has to be the number one issue."

When it came to transportation, Smith had some interesting ideas, including making simple changes to the bus routes to take people where they need to go.

"The success of the T is critical to Everett," he said. "Every bus is full. We should do things like make the 104 or 109 bus continue on to Harvard Square. Now, people have to get off and take the City bus or the 86. If they just continued on, it would be such an easy fix."

Then, when it came to a fare increase for the T, Smith said he would prefer to raise fares on items that don't affect residents, such as the $22 week-pass that is designed for tourists.

"That has to be the greatest deal on any transportation system in the U.S.," he said. "I think it's $60 in New York. The need to raise things like that first. It only affects tourists. It wouldn't hurt any resident in Greater Boston."

On a fare increase, Adrien said she is against any increase across the board. She said she prefers a system that charges people based on their income.

"If you make $30,000 a year, you would pay something like the $2 fare it is now," she said. "If you make more than $100,000, you would pay more than the current fare."

When it came to immigration, particularly making Massachusetts and Everett a Sanctuary State and City, there was a difference of opinions.

"When it comes to the Safe Communities Act, I think we need to have an honest conversation about it," said Adrien. "(On a Sanctuary State), I would support that. Our immigrants are important and are important contributors to our society. I will never turn my back against them."

Smith said he wouldn't support the Sanctuary State or City issue, and Rep. McGonagle agreed.

"I would not be in favor of making Everett a Sanctuary City or making the state a Sanctuary State," said Smith.

Said McGonagle, "It's a complex issue and not easy but at this point I'm not in favor of making Massachusetts a Sanctuary State or Everett a Sanctuary City. We need to give law enforcement all the tools they need to help. We have an issue in this city with gangs and we do a great job with policing. I don't believe the EPD is pulling people over and driving them down to the Police Station and calling ICE."

Adrien responded later with disappointment for McGonagle's answer.

"Gangs are not just part of the immigrant community," she said. "As somebody who supports immigrants, it's very sad to hear that accusation."

On another topic, McGonagle had a strong opinion on Capital Punishment, saying he is considering supporting a measure that would use the death penalty for those who kill police officers.

"I believe if you kill a police officer, you should be punished and the extreme punishment is death," he said. "I would support that and the governor is talking about that...The police need our support now. That won't be an easy vote for me. I think that officer in Weymouth was killed because he hesitated and was worried what would happen to him if he shot. I would support the death penalty for that."

Smith and Adrien were against the death penalty.

All three candidates had significant support in the audience for their campaigns, and left after having a very informative forum. No one candidate refused to answer any of the many questions on numerous subjects.

SCHOOL CAUSES TRAFFIC JAM

EVERETT - Residents of Fleet Court in the Village have taken to patrolling their own street.

The small private way hasn't incurred a wave of crime or some other rash of misdeeds, but rather it has been inundated with desperate parents trying to navigate the narrow paths of the Village to the new Pioneer Charter School, which last week debuted with its full contingent of 600-plus students in Grades K-8.

"We have a couple of people on the street who have posted themselves on the corner to try to keep people from coming down our street," said Kathy Prizzio. "The huge increase in traffic is a huge nightmare and inconvenience to the people here. Our street abuts the parking lot of the school, but there is a chain link fence to keep it closed. People are driving down the street frantically and realizing they can't get through and so then they try to do a U-turn. That's not easy on these narrow streets...I'm angry at the City for allowing the school to come here, but I've heard they didn't really have a choice."

And that's just one street. Callers from all over the Village told the Independent that traffic at pick up and drop off has been horrible since the school started full operations last Tuesday, Aug. 14. There are reports of impatient parents driving on sidewalks, going the wrong direction on streets and simply gridlocking the neighborhood.

The Pioneer Charter School already has a long-standing location for its high school on Summer Street, but last year they consolidated several locations into the building in the Village near Santilli Circle. Last spring, they opened the new consolidated location for K-4, and then last week, the full K-8 contingent reported to the new school in the Village.

Rosanna Corrado, director of communications from the school, said they understand the concerns and hope to implement a new policy to help with pick-ups in the afternoon. Part of the problem, she said, was that with the expanded student population, they did not let parents drive into the parking lot at dismissal due to safety concerns. That led to mayhem on the surrounding streets.

Now, she said, they will implement a policy where parents can come at dismissal and circulate through the parking lot as they do during morning drop-offs.

"We definitely heard about the problems and acknowledge the neighborhood's concerns," she said. "We understand there were a lot of frustrations. For the first week, we were not allowing parents to come into the parking lot to pick up the children because there were so many kids there. It was for safety, but because we heard the concerns of neighbors, we are going to put in a new pattern."

She said the new "rolling dismissal" should stop the problems at dismissal. She said most of the problems they were aware of were at dismissal.

"We're really just trying to address the problems that we saw," she said. "We have been going back and forth with elected officials about their input to make sure everyone is all set."

She said part of the problem is simply the large amounts of new students with parents who are coming to the Village for the first time. Many of them are unfamiliar with the traffic patterns and the streets, so the first week partly had some learning curve to overcome, she said.

Councilor Michael McLaughlin said he got several calls on Friday from residents who described a very chaotic scene with traffic violations and safety issues.

The Winthrop Police and Fire Departments sponsored the Aug. 22 Winthrop Senior Center BBQ. Officers and firemen prepared and served burgers, hot dogs, and watermelon to over 170 seniors, a community that is important to the first responders. Friends enjoyed socializing, bidding on raffles, and visiting with local officials during the luncheon.

Deputy Police Chief John Goodwin, Ronald DeStefano, and Town Manager Austin Faison.
